Senate to consider ERA, death bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A death penalty bill and the Equal Rights Amendment await Senate consideration this week as the Missouri Legislature returned to work today after an extended Memorial Day weekend.

The House resumes its work on Senate-approved measures with a possible resumption of debate on a proposal to regulate rock music festivals.

Negotiations of a joint House-Senate conference committee on differences in the versions of the state's $2.3 billion budget could also get underway.

The Senate completed its consideration of the eight bills appropriating funds for the state's operations beginning in July last week, following closely the recommendations of its appropriations panel as the House generally did several weeks earlier.

The crucial figure involved in the budget is expenditure of the state's general tax receipts, which both Gov. Christopher S. Bond and legislative leaders have acknowledged will show little growth due to the general state of the economy.

Bond has called for a balanced budget but has left decisions on how available funds should be spent to the lawmakers. His general revenue recommendations called for an expenditure of general tax funds totaling $1.126 billion. The remainder of the budget funds comes from federal and other sources.

Revenue estimates have placed the tax receipts for the coming year at $1,118,300,000 and the House approved budget totals about $250,000 less than that. The Senate budget bills total about $1 million more than the revenue estimates.

The complex compromise efforts by the joint committee, whose members must still be appointed, is expected to take most of the next two weeks. But House Speaker Richard Rabbitt said he anticipates that the legislature will met the June 8 deadline for final approval of the bills. Last year the deadline was missed by 17 hours.

The House is also expected to begin floor debate of a capital improvements funding measure, totaling more than $50 million, Wednesday, and the final consideration by both chambers of a long-delayed $36 million emergency appropriations bill is also expected to be completed this week.

A revised compromise was reached on that measure late last week after the Senate reversed its approval of an initial compromise, accusing House members of changing already agreed to sections of the bill. House leaders have disputed that charge.

One killed, 29 hurt

A Texas woman was killed, six persons received serious injuries and 23 received lesser injuries in 17 area traffic accidentss over the Memorial Day weekend, the highway patrol announced today. The death was the 33rd on Southeast Missouri roads this year, compared to 39 at the same time in 1974.

Lou Ann Steele, 41, of Denton, Tex., was killed in a two-vehicle accident at 4:50 p.m. Monday on Highway 60 four miles east of Wyatt.

The accident occurred when an eastbound tractor- trailer truck driven by Cecil E. Ross, 27, of Memphis, Tenn., crossed the centerline and struck a westbound van driven by Mrs. Steele.

She was pronounced dead at the scene by Elgin McMikle, the Mississippi County coroner.

Receiving serious injuries were Ross and two passengers in the Steele car, Robert J. Steele, 42, and Douglas Steele, 16. All three were taken to PADCO Community Hospital at Cairo, Ill. The latter two were later transferred to Western Baptist Hospital at Paducah, Ky.

A late death was reported. Edna Genell Johnston, 65, of Poplar Bluff Route Three died at 9:35 p.m.. Friday in Lucy Lee Hospital at Poplar Bluff of injuries received in an automobile accident Friday afternoon.

The accident occurred at 3:11 p.m. when she attempted to make a left turn off Route T, and her car collided head on with a southbound car driven by Paul D. Barker, 18, of Qulin Route One, who suffered serious injuries. Also killed in the accident was Edwin Eudall Whitlock, 62, of Poplar Bluff Route Three, who was struck by the Barker vehicle while mowing his lawn.

Chris Junior Dunivan, 18, of Poplar Bluff received minor

Lounge destroyed by fire

NEW MADRID — A major fire early Monday destroyed one building on Main Street and damaged two others.

Fire of unknown origin broke out at 3 a.m. in Silver Dollar Lounge, located in the Dawson Building at 323 Main St. Flames had engulfed the interior of the 72-year-old, two-story, brick structure before the fire was spotted by a police officer.

Minutes after firemen arrived an explosion blew out the large front glass windows and collapsed the side walls. The flames quickly spread throughout the building and threatened adjoining businesses.

The firemen were aided by the calmness of the early morning hours, however, and were able to contain the blaze to the Dawson Building, although a vacant building beside it was heavily damaged when the north wall collapsed onto it.

LeSieur Jewelery Store, 319 Main St., had minor fire damage to a side door and some smoke and water damage. A narrow alley between the burning building and the jewelry store, plus firemen hosing water onto the store, prevented further damage.

The blaze as brought under control about 5 a.m. However, firemen, municipal light and water plant employes and gas company employes remained at the scene until 8 a.m. as a precautionary measure.

Youth drowns

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP)—The body of a Puxico teenager who disappeared while swimming at Lake Wappapello was recovered Monday, the Missouri Division of Water Safety reported.

Charles M. Jones, 16, disappeared Sunday while swimming in the Peoples Creek Swimming area at the lake, which is located in southeast Missouri north of Poplar Bluff. Authorities said Jones drowned while on a swimming outing with friends.

Elections commission to meet in Sikeston

David Blanton, a Sikeston attorney and vice chairman of the Missouri Elections Commission, announced today that a public meeting of the Missouri Elections Commission will be held Friday and Saturday in the Security National Bank Community room, 625 N. Main St. The Friday portion of the meeting will begin at 1 p.m. and close at 5 p.m. Saturday's session will meet from 9 a.m. until noon.

The commission will consider rules and regulations on the Campaign Finance and Disclosure Law which will provide guidance to political action committees, political party committees, political campaign committees and candidates on reporting contributions and expenditures.

The Friday afternoon meeting will focus on rules regarding fund raising to pay debts incurred prior to the effective date of the act; discussion of the commission's manual of instructions and the consideration of proposed guidelines for processing and investigating alleged and apparent violations of the law.

On Saturday morning, the commission will consider questions regarding testimonial dinners and other fund-raising activities and report requirements for committees and candidates.

The Missouri Elections Commission administers the Campaign Finance and Disclosure Law, enacted by approximately a four to one majority of voters through a referendum of November 5, 1974.

Bicentennial flag is presented at festival

DEXTER — A fun-filled Memorial Day weekend was provided for hundreds of area residents who turned out for the many activities featured in conjunction with the annual Strawberry Festival.

Dexter's Bicentennial celebration also received an official sendoff with the presentation of an official Bicentennial flag at 6 p.m. Friday at the city administration building.

A parade following the flag-raising ceremony was led by visiting dignitaries, including 10th District Rep. Bill Burlison of Cape Girardeau, State Reps. C. F. Cline of Sikeston and Jerry Howard of Dexter and State Sen. Nelson Tinnin of Hornersville, who rode in the antique cars.

The parade also featured several floats, a nonmotorized section and Miss Dexter, Susan Taylor, with her attendants, Diane Hodder and Vickie Kandalaft.

Following the parade, spectators moved to Dexter High School, where they were treated to performances by Many Smokes, a local Boy Scout Troop performing ceremonial Indian dances, and Bill Volner of Sikeston, a nationally known square dance caller, and his Thunderbird Squares.

Saturday and Sunday were set aside for the annual Art in the Park exhibition. The exhibit featured orignal arts and crafts by artists from Kentucky, Tennessee, Mississippi, Arkansas, Illinois and throughout Missouri. The many displays were set up in the West City Park, adjoining McCollum, and West Oak Streets.

Additional highlights of the outdoor festival were strawberry pie and ice cream made from fresh berries plucked from Dexter area fields.

Sikeston sports complex

Sikeston's new sports complex, shown in the drawing above looking to the west, will officially open its parks today for the beginning of the Junior Babe Ruth League season. To get to the complex, fans will have to enter from Airport Drive, because the Ingram Road entrance has not been completed. City work crews constructed the facility and are busy today installing bleachers for tonight's opening two games. Mayor Don Fulton will throw out the first ball during a dedication ceremony at 5:30 p.m.

Sports complex opens tonight

Sikeston's new sports complex will receive an official sendoff tonight at 6:30 when Mayor Don Fulton thorws out the first ball to kick off the Junior Babe Ruth League baseball season.

City Manager Charles Church said that the city would conduct formal opening ceremonies of the complete complex — located west of Sikestog Memorial Airport — when the fishing lake is completed and the grass has had a chance to grow on the baseball diamonds outfields.

City league softball action has been under way at the complex for about two weeks.

Bleachers are being set up today and restroom facilities are expected to be completed in the near future.

The cost of the 136-acre complex has run close to $400,000. The facility includes four fully lighted Little League and Babe Ruth League baseball feidls, four tennis courts and a fishing lake. All work has been done by city crews, except for a few contract jobs, Church said.

Planning for the park began in 1971 when former City Manager Raymert Miller applied for a $195,000 federal grant from the State Department of Outdoor Recreation for matching funds.

Original plans for a par-three nine-hole golf course, which had to be eliminated due to lack of funds.

In June 1972, then Gov. Warren E. Hearnes helped dedicate the park in ground-breaking ceremonies.

Picnic areas and shelters will also be provided for the public when the project is completed.

AND NOW LOAS

It hardly seems possible, but fourteen years ago the "Laos Crisis" was in the forefront of this country's foreign policy problems. The departing President Eisenhower warned the incoming John Kennedy that the U.S. might have to intervene with troops if the Communist Pathet Lao, backed up by the North Vietnamese, persisted in their efforts to take over the country militarily. Kennedy declined this course, opting instead for a patchwork coalition government that left half the country in the hands of the North Vietnamese. They in turn used it as a corridor to feed troops and supplies into South Vietnam. The battle that was avoided in Laos was joined, and finally lost, in Vietnam.

Last week the wheel of tragedy turned full circle. The bamboo curtain rang down on Laos and the last of the Indo-China dominoes toppled.

It hardly drew a headline. As the non-Communist elements in the coalition government regisned and fled and the Royal Laotian Army disintegrated without a fight, the veteran neutralist premier, Souvanna Phouma, could only tell his people that it was necessary to look at the facts and prepare "to reach an accord with history." Who would dare to oppose the Communists now, with the momentum of their victories in Cambodia and Vietnam sweeping all before it in Southeast Asia? Certainly not Laos. And certainly not Thailand, with its whole eastern frontier from China to the Gulf of Siam now open to attack or infiltration. And how long can Malaysia, Singapore, and Burma hold out?

The "unmitigated disaster" which Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew labeled U.S. Southeast Asia policy at a White House dinner cannot be denied and should not be underestimated. Czechoslovakia seemed like a "faraway country about which we know nothing" to some Britons in 1938. Laos may appear that way now to some Americans. But in this interconnected world, when history tolls for one people, it sounds a warning for all others as well. Americans take heed, lest one day we have to reach our own "accord with history."

'MEDICAL MECHANIZATION'

Americans may complain about the assemblyline aspects of modern medicine, as well as its costs, but it is precisely the trend toward "medical mechanization" that offers one of the best hopes for keeping costs down without reducing the quality of care.

The operating room, one of the hardest pressed areas of the hospital, has been successfully turning to automatic devices and disposable supplies.

For example, throwaway needles and syringes are replacing reusables that require expensive labor to clean and re-sterilize. Many hospitals are also switching to disposable scrub suits and surgical drapery, which substantially reduces laundering expenses.

The electric cautery, now widely accepted, cuts operating time and eliminates the use of dozens of expensive sutures. And where suturing is necessary, the surgical stapler has emerged as probably the most sifnificant time and cost saver.

Surgical stapling instruments stitch automatically using tiny stainless steel staples. A surgeon can simultaneously place the equivalent of 66 silk sutures with one application, reducing operating time by as much as 50 per cent.

The use of surgical staplers is increasing rapidly. One maker United States Surgical Corp., estimates that close to 100 million patients have been "stapled" since it introduced its Auto Suture surgical stapling line in 1967.

With costs anywhere from $80 to $100 an hour to run an operating room today, any device that saves $40 or $50 an hour is good news. In addition, "stampled" patients are said to heal faster, have fewer postoperative complications and go home sooner.

MEET JOHNNY HORIZON

He's not as well known as Smokey the Bear, but if the Department of the Interior can help it, Johnny Horizon soon will be. At least he's sexier looking.

Interior created Johnny Horizon as a national symbol to represent the fight for a cleaner environment, just as Smokey the Bear represents the fight against forest fires. Now, in an effort to reach more Americans with the environmental improvement and ecology theme, the department is encouraging privately owned recreational parks to use the Johnny Horizon name to promote its Johnny Horizon '76 program: "To clean up America for its 200th birthday — then keep it clean."

When Congress authorized the establishment of the Johnny Horizon program in 1970, it also authorized the secretary of the interior to license private companies to use its symbol for consumer products and services.

All kinds of campgrounds, resorts, scenic attractions, "theme" parks and other recreational parks will not only promote the government's environmental message but, through royalty payments to the government and through sale of Johnny Horizon products, will help support and expand the Johnny Horizon program.

Says Bob Schmidt, president of Natural Park Systems of New York, which will distribute a guide to Johnny Horizon Natural Parks:

"We hope to make the public aware that whenever they visit a Johnny Horizon Natural Park, they are not only visiting one of the finest parks in America, they are also contributing to the government's environment appreciation and improvement program because a part of every dollar they spend is going back to the government to help support the Johnny Horizon program."

THE MEASURE OF A "FRIEND "

It is a measure of something when the death of a man like Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, who contributed vast millions to the war chests of Egypt and Syria, who inspired the oil embargo against the West, is lamented as a blow to hopes for peace in the Middle East and as the loss of a great friend of the United States.

It is a measure of the disarray this country's foreign policy is in, or of the state of the moral principles that supposedly guide that policy, or perhaps both.

Faisal was extolled as a conservative and a moderate, and indeed he was in comparison to other Middle Eastern figures such as Palestinian leader Yassir Arafat. And if anticommunism is the mark of a friend of the United States, then Faisal was truly a friend. His hatred of communism was almost as great as his hatred of Israel.

But if the chances for peace in the Middle East have been set back by Faisal's passing, it is the kind of peace that the Israelis, at least, know would be scarcely preferable to outright defeat in another round of war with the Arabs.

It is a measure of something else that the failure of Secretary of State Kissinger's go-between negotiations on behalf of Israel and Egypt has resulted in a rising tide of criticism of Israel by many Americans. Perhaps it is our weariness with perpetual crisis in that part of the world, or of our frustration over the fact that Israel, victor in every encounter with the Arabs, refused to give up a few miles of desert it had taken from Egypt in the 1973 war.

More ominously, it may be a measure of our readiness, as we demonstrated in the so-called peace achieved in Vietnam, to bring pressure to bear upon our friends when the enemies of our friends prove unyielding.

It is difficult to believe that the secretary of state could ever have entertained any realistic hopes that his shuttling between Tel Aviv and Cairo would accomplish anything.

Israel, like South Vietnam, simply asked for too much-the right to exist in peace. As an initial step toward peace, it offered the strategic Gidi and Milta passes in the Sinai and the Abu Rudeis oil fields in exchange for some kind of assurance that Egypt would renounce the use of war against Israel and that it would not be strangled economically.

It was an assurance that Egyptian President Sadat was unwilling to give, and could not have given had he wanted to and retain his position of leadership in the Arab world.

Unfortunately for Henry Kissinger, Israel is not South Vietnam, and he was unable to negotiate over their heads and make concessions for them, as he did in Paris in 1972.

The scene will apparently now move to Geneva, where Israel and the United States will confront all the Arabs in a general conference, plus the Palestinians and the Soviet Union.

It is another question why this eventuality should so devoutly have been wished to be avoided. Better to have the dog-in-the manger machinations of the Soviet Union out in the open rather than hidden, as they have been. Better to have the only goal which all the Arabs share-the destruction of Israel-exposed for all the world to see rather than disguised by supposed negotiations over desert passes.

King Faisal's greatest ambition, it is said, was to pray in Jerusalem before he died. But the king could have prayed in Jerusalem any time he wanted, which is something Jews could not do when the city was under Arab control.

Before Americans abandon the only real friend they have in the Middle East, the only democracy in that part of the world and the only ally willing and able to defend itself, let them reflect on the real meaning of "moderate" King Faisal's unrealized dream.

"The other night when you read in the paper that there was a worldwide shortage of toilet paper, I noticed you bought a little extra the next day in town even if we have a linen closet half full. This particular night the moon was full so he didn't bother to take a lantern. His only light in the biffy was the moonlight that came thru the knotholes an' cracks in the rickety old building.

When he was done he reached into the box which held the paper an' there was nothing in the box. He looked around in desperation and finally saw a patch of white on the seat, which he reached for in relief.

Some minutes later when he got back in the house he went right over the the kitchen sink, pumped himself some cistern water, and' began to scrub his hands with soap and water.

No — To Professional Legislators

One thing we definitely do not want to see happen in Missouri is the establishment of a full time legislature. It was bad enough that the state went to annual sessions of the General Assembly, but professional legislators would simply be too much.

The basic argument against the full time or professional legislature is that the legislators would lose contact with the people. In spending all of their time in Jefferson City, it is doubtful if legislators could really keep in contact with the people they are supposed to represent. They would lose the feel of some of the basic problems in their own areas.

A criticism often hard today is that the legislature is a "do-nothing" body. Usually this means that they are not busying passing one law right after another. After spending nearly 25 years in close contact with the Missouri legislature, we have come to the conclusion that some of the best sessions have been those where very few laws were passed.

It is not necessary that a legislature pass as many laws as it can. The facts that bills have been entered and never passed often attest to the good work of committees and the assembly in finding out that the laws are not good and probably should never have been introduced in the first place. In fact, if fewer bills were introduced the members of the legislature could spend more time on the bills being considered.

A full time legislature would simply mean more laws introduced and, in all probability, more laws passed. Today too many laws are for special interest groups who lobby heavily for their passage. Most every law passed either costs the taxpayer more money or takes away a little more freedom of the individual.

It is estimated that in this country we have more than 250,000 laws. While most of them are intended to improve the Ten Commandments, few of them contribute very much.

We sorta go on the old idea that, "When the legislature is in session no man's life, liberty or property is safe."

We have all the government we need in Missouri. To those who would argue about the efficiency of government, we answer that we don't really want government to be too efficient. The really efficient systems are administered by dictators and they have no appeal to us.

Cumbersome as it is we'll cast our lot with the original democratic system and it is based on representatives close to the people not professional, full time legislators.

GOVERNOR BOND SETS A RECORD

As Governor Christopher Bond prepares his campaign material for his race again for the office of Governor, there is an item he can stress that created a record for him.

We know of no Governor in Missouri who has ever had as much difficulty in getting his appointments confirmed as has the young millionaire Christopher Bond. He's at it again right now.

Governor Bond tried to fill his own staff with some personnel that even did not clear the Missouri state senate. He was forced to withdraw the name. He suggested a name on one of the boards at Missouri Western College at St. Joseph. That didn't work and he was forced to submit another name.

It has been that way right down the line. He recently suggested a name or two for membership on the board of curators at the University of Missouri. There was a negative vote by the senate and new names had to be proposed.

Governor Bond offered the name of a man on the Public Service Commission. A fellow by the name of Miller came under the scrutiny of a senate committee. He was found wanting and the name was turned down.

So next Governor Bond names a man for the Public Service Commission post by the name of Stephen B. Jones. Mr. Jones, at first sight, appeared to be a rather good choice. Then an investigation made some disclosures.

It seems that Mr. Jones headed a group of J.C. Nichols Co., employes that had channeled campaign contributions to various political candidates in recent years. That hardly seems like an appropriate man for such an exacting post.

But Mr. Jones, apparently trying to aid his own cause, made a statement that he had favored State Auditor George Lehr for the post he was seeking. That sounded real good until Auditor Lehr wrote a letter disclaiming any knowledge that Jones had supported him. In fact, he let it be known that Mr. Jones had supported Lehr's opponent, John Ashcroft.

There is an oddity in all of these nominations for various offices. It is quite true that Democrats control the Missouri senate. But even though they do, there are Republican leaders in the senate who are not seeing eye to eye with Governor Bond.

Senator Richard Webster from Joplin is often at odds with Governor Bond on his appointments. And so is GOP State Senator Clifford Jones from St. Louis. They don't seem to like some of the names the millionaire governor sends to them.

This problem of appointments may very well continue to haunt Governor Bond as long as he is Governor-maybe no longer than the end of 1976, when we believe a Democrat will once again assume that post in Jefferson City.

I'LL TAKE MANHATTAN'

WASHINGTON — Mayor Abe Beame and Gov. Hugh Carey came to Washington a few weeks ago to try to get President Ford to lend New York City $1.5 billion. It wasn't a very successful meeting. The details are now starting to trickle out.

"Mr. President Gov. Carey said, "this is my good friend Mayor Beame of New York City who has a little problem he'd like to talk to you about."

"I'm very pleased to meet you, Mayor Beame. How is John Lindsay?"

"That's what I came to speak to you about. Boy, did he leave me with a debt. Listen, Mr. President, I know you're very busy so I'll make it short. I need one and a half billion dollars or new York goes down the tube."

"Well, I'm sorry to hear that. I've always liked New York City -- just to visit, mind you. I wouldn't want to live there."

"Mr. President, Abe is really in a spot. If he doesn't get the loan, the banks are going to foreclose on his city and everyone will be out in the strteet with their furniture, which means I'd have to call out the National Guard to prevent looting."

"Well, Hugh, as you know I'm always willing to help out a Democratic city with a Democratic governor, but we're a little strapped down here right now. Have you tried the banks?"

"Have we tried the banks?" Mayor Beame said. "We've been to every bank in New York. We don't even have a friend at Chase Manhattan any more. Look, you're always bailing out those rinky-dink countries when they run out of money. Why can't you help one of your own cities?"

"We don't give them money – we give them arms. Would you like some aniaircraft missiles or some airplanes? I'm sure I could arrange that," the President said.

"What he needs, Mr. President," Gov. Carey said, "is cash."

"You want collateral?" Mayor Beame said. "I'll put up the Bronx and Staten Island. It's unimproved land, but it would make a heckuva investment."

"Mr. Mayor," the President said, "I would love to give you the money, but what kind of precedent would I be setting if every time a city ran out of money it came running to Washington? You haye to live within your means like we do in Washington. You can't keep borrowing money all the time."

"I thought you had a 50 billion-dollar deficit this year."

"There's no reason to get snappy, Mayor," President Ford said.

Gov. Carey jumped in. "Forgive him, Mr. President, he's under a lot of tension. Isn't there some way to find some money for the mayor? What about the CIA? Certainly they could spare a billion and a half."

"The CIA only gives financial aid to put in right-wing governments. I don't think Mayor Beame's administration would qualify."

"Then give the money to overthrow me," Mayor Beame said. "I don't care how I get it."

"I'm sorry, Mayor Beame, but I can't justify any kind of a loan."

"All right then, I'll take the arms you offered me. I'll need 150 fighter bombers, 3,000 tanks and 600 ground-to-air missiles."

What for?" the President asked.

Mayor Beame replied, "The day I can't make my payroll I'm going to need all the arms I can get."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS!
Senate CIA-FBI Probe 'Nonexistent'

WASHINGTON — The select senate committee, which is investigating the CIA and FBI, has imposed airtight security on its operations. We have learned, nevertheless, that the committee has been riven by dissent, has hired few real investigators and has scarcely scratched the surface of the CIA-FBI scandals.

So serious is the situation that a responsible senior committee worker, who will be fired if he is caught, has composed an explicit memo for us on the problems.

Chairman Frank Church, D.-Idaho, "Is under a delusion he will be able to conclude the probe within the next few months," declares the handwritten report. "He lacks investigative staff to do it and has no way of knowing if the preliminary information given is either accurate or complete.

"If it is not, it means the committee will have to start from scratch again, with competent investigators to find out what the true facts are."

The memo complains that the committee has virtually ignored the military and anti-drug agencies it also is supposed to investigate. "The main preliminary work done so far has been in reference to the FBI and CIA with virtually nothing else being done concerning the rest of the committee mandate," states the memo.

At "virtually every step of the almost nonexistent investigation," it concludes, "Church has bent over backward to please the CIA."

Church is one of the most able, conscientious members of the Senate. But we have confirmed, at least, that some of his committee colleagues have complained to their staffs that Church, in his zeal to be fair-minded, has sided most often with the under-the-rug views of Sens. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., and John Tower, R.-Tex.

They have taken a stern stand against the senators who favor an open as possible probe. Those who can be counted in this category are Sens. Howard Baker, R.-Tenn., Gary Hart, D.-Colo., Phil Hart, D.-Mich., Walter Mondale, D.-Minn., and Richard Schweiker, R.-Pa.

Friends of the committee have insisted to us that sweetness, light and unanimity have prevailed in the secret sessions. But this ambiance apparently can be attributed to the traditional Senate civility.

At one tightly closed meeting, for example, Sen. Robert Morgan, D.-N.C., strongly urged that any details of CIA assassination plots should be kept from the American public, our sources report. Another source said Morgan, after speaking about the assassinations, left it up in the air whether the facts should be suppressed.

There have been complaints that Church and Tower confer secretly on a wide range of subjects with the CIA but don't fully share their information with other senators.

Finally Gary Hart and Schweiker devoted a recent Saturday to a visit to CIA headquarters. They paid a call on Deputy Director Cari Duckett, the chief technologist, whose staff gave them a briefing.

Nervous CIA officials spread whispers that the visit had to do with reports that the bullet-headed Duckett would soon be named the new CIA director. Actually, Duckett stayed with the senators only a few moments.

The Church committee, meanwhile, has had trouble recruiting crack investigators. A recent bid was made to hire Washington's primo private eye, Richard Bast, who has been battling the FBI for 15 years.

Shea, who said he was speaking for staff director William Miller, invited Bast to hire "a couple other people that you trusted ... who would be supervised by you."

Describing the work, Shea said: "There are four task forces right now -- domestic intelligence, military (intelligence), technological intelligence, and then 'command and control' which focuses largely on the White House."

Shea stressed, however, that "it's not going to be a witch hunt. We're trying to find information and material which show good law enforcement and good intellige intelligence operations were conducted ... It goes both ways."

Bast made a follow-up visit to the committee's heavily guarded office where he found a Capitol policeman logging every visitor. The police, Bast noted, aren't above suspicion as informants for the intelligence community. "You don't get heavy informers coming to see you with a setup like that," Bast told us.

He also learned that the committee had been working on staff credentials for two months. "That's something that could be done in two days," marveled Bast.

So he told us: "I decided they were mostly a bunch of pussycats and some were interested in a coverup. I don't want my name linked to that kind of investigation."

Footnote: Senator Church declined comment, but a spokesman ringingly defended the committee as "moving along on course." He said the charge that the probe is limited to the FBI and CIA is "utterly wrong.." Moreover, he said, when more investigators are needed they will be brought in. At present, he said, the need is for skilled lawyers to question witnesses who already have been identified. There is always some dissent in every group, he said, but "so far we've avoided splits. We've been able to show unanimity."

AND NOW LOAS

It hardly seems possible, but fourteen years ago the "Laos Crisis" was in the forefront of this country's foreign policy problems. The departing President Eisenhower warned the incoming John Kennedy that the U.S. might have to intervene with troops if the Communist Pathet Lao, backed up by the North Vietnamese, persisted in their efforts to take over the country militarily. Kennedy declined this course, opting instead for a patchwork coalition government that left half the country in the hands of the North Vietnamese. They in turn used it as a corridor to feed troops and supplies into South Vietnam. The battle that was avoided in Laos was joined, and finally lost, in Vietnam.

Last week the wheel of tragedy turned full circle. The bamboo curtain rang down on Laos and the last of the Indo-China dominoes toppled.

It hardly drew a headline. As the non-Communist elements in the coalition government regisned and fled and the Royal Laotian Army disintegrated without a fight, the veteran neutralist premier, Souvanna Phouma, could only tell his people that it was necessary to look at the facts and prepare "to reach an accord with history." Who would dare to oppose the Communists now, with the momentum of their victories in Cambodia and Vietnam sweeping all before it in Southeast Asia? Certainly not Laos. And certainly not Thailand, with its whole eastern frontier from China to the Gulf of Siam now open to attack or infiltration. And how long can Malaysia, Singapore, and Burma hold out?

The "unmitigated disaster" which Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew labeled U.S. Southeast Asia policy at a White House dinner cannot be denied and should not be underestimated. Czechoslovakia seemed like a "faraway country about which we know nothing" to some Britons in 1938. Laos may appear that way now to some Americans. But in this interconnected world, when history tolls for one people, it sounds a warning for all others as well. Americans take heed, lest one day we have to reach our own "accord with history."

'MEDICAL MECHANIZATION'

Americans may complain about the assemblyline aspects of modern medicine, as well as its costs, but it is precisely the trend toward "medical mechanization" that offers one of the best hopes for keeping costs down without reducing the quality of care.

The operating room, one of the hardest pressed areas of the hospital, has been successfully turning to automatic devices and disposable supplies.

For example, throwaway needles and syringes are replacing reusables that require expensive labor to clean and re-sterilize. Many hospitals are also switching to disposable scrub suits and surgical drapery, which substantially reduces laundering expenses.

The electric cautery, now widely accepted, cuts operating time and eliminates the use of dozens of expensive sutures. And where suturing is necessary, the surgical stapler has emerged as probably the most sifnificant time and cost saver.

Surgical stapling instruments stitch automatically using tiny stainless steel staples. A surgeon can simultaneously place the equivalent of 66 silk sutures with one application, reducing operating time by as much as 50 per cent.

The use of surgical staplers is increasing rapidly. One maker United States Surgical Corp., estimates that close to 100 million patients have been "stapled" since it introduced its Auto Suture surgical stapling line in 1967.

With costs anywhere from $80 to $100 an hour to run an operating room today, any device that saves $40 or $50 an hour is good news. In addition, "stampled" patients are said to heal faster, have fewer postoperative complications and go home sooner.

MEET JOHNNY HORIZON

He's not as well known as Smokey the Bear, but if the Department of the Interior can help it, Johnny Horizon soon will be. At least he's sexier looking.

Interior created Johnny Horizon as a national symbol to represent the fight for a cleaner environment, just as Smokey the Bear represents the fight against forest fires. Now, in an effort to reach more Americans with the environmental improvement and ecology theme, the department is encouraging privately owned recreational parks to use the Johnny Horizon name to promote its Johnny Horizon '76 program: "To clean up America for its 200th birthday — then keep it clean."

When Congress authorized the establishment of the Johnny Horizon program in 1970, it also authorized the secretary of the interior to license private companies to use its symbol for consumer products and services.

All kinds of campgrounds, resorts, scenic attractions, "theme" parks and other recreational parks will not only promote the government's environmental message but, through royalty payments to the government and through sale of Johnny Horizon products, will help support and expand the Johnny Horizon program.

Says Bob Schmidt, president of Natural Park Systems of New York, which will distribute a guide to Johnny Horizon Natural Parks:

"We hope to make the public aware that whenever they visit a Johnny Horizon Natural Park, they are not only visiting one of the finest parks in America, they are also contributing to the government's environment appreciation and improvement program because a part of every dollar they spend is going back to the government to help support the Johnny Horizon program."

Most every law passed either costs the taxpayer more money or takes away a little more freedom of the individual.

It is estimated that in this country we have more than 250,000 laws. While most of them are intended to improve the Ten Commandments, few of them contribute very much.

We sorta go on the old idea that, "When the legislature is in session no man's life, liberty or property is safe."

We have all the government we need in Missouri. To those who would argue about the efficiency of government, we answer that we don't really want government to be too efficient. The really efficient systems are administered by dictators and they have no appeal to us.

Cumbersome as it is we'll cast our lot with the original democratic system and it is based on representatives close to the people not professional, full time legislators.

GOVERNOR BOND SETS A RECORD

As Governor Christopher Bond prepares his campaign material for his race again for the office of Governor, there is an item he can stress that created a record for him.

We know of no Governor in Missouri who has ever had as much difficulty in getting his appointments confirmed as has the young millionaire Christopher Bond. He's at it again right now.

Governor Bond tried to fill his own staff with some personnel that even did not clear the Missouri state senate. He was forced to withdraw the name. He suggested a name on one of the boards at Missouri Western College at St. Joseph. That didn't work and he was forced to submit another name.

It has been that way right down the line. He recently suggested a name or two for membership on the board of curators at the University of Missouri. There was a negative vote by the senate and new names had to be proposed.

Governor Bond offered the name of a man on the Public Service Commission. A fellow by the name of Miller came under the scrutiny of a senate committee. He was found wanting and the name was turned down.

So next Governor Bond names a man for the Public Service Commission post by the name of Stephen B. Jones. Mr. Jones, at first sight, appeared to be a rather good choice. Then an investigation made some disclosures.

It seems that Mr. Jones headed a group of J.C. Nichols Co., employes that had channeled campaign contributions to various political candidates in recent years. That hardly seems like an appropriate man for such an exacting post.

But Mr. Jones, apparently trying to aid his own cause, made a statement that he had favored State Auditor George Lehr for the post he was seeking. That sounded real good until Auditor Lehr wrote a letter disclaiming any knowledge that Jones had supported him. In fact, he let it be known that Mr. Jones had supported Lehr's opponent, John Ashcroft.

There is an oddity in all of these nominations for various offices. It is quite true that Democrats control the Missouri senate. But even though they do, there are Republican leaders in the senate who are not seeing eye to eye with Governor Bond.

Senator Richard Webster from Joplin is often at odds with Governor Bond on his appointments. And so is GOP State Senator Clifford Jones from St. Louis. They don't seem to like some of the names the millionaire governor sends to them.

This problem of appointments may very well continue to haunt Governor Bond as long as he is Governor-maybe no longer than the end of 1976, when we believe a Democrat will once again assume that post in Jefferson City.

"Twice as many college graduates are being turned out as 20 years ago. But with all our emphasis on education, the nation seems to have a higher rate of economic illiteracy today than ever before.

"If the function of profits were better understood-both in and out of government-the trend toward centralization of authority would not be proceeding at such an alarming rate. And if faith were not being steadily eroded in the effectiveness of private incentive and initiative, our social problems could move more rapidly toward solution....

"Unless far more people than at present recognize that profits are the goose that lays the golden eggs for our economic system, the trends towards massive government interference-with its stifling effect-will continue to accelerate."

I'LL TAKE MANHATTAN'

WASHINGTON — Mayor Abe Beame and Gov. Hugh Carey came to Washington a few weeks ago to try to get President Ford to lend New York City $1.5 billion. It wasn't a very successful meeting. The details are now starting to trickle out.

"Mr. President Gov. Carey said, "this is my good friend Mayor Beame of New York City who has a little problem he'd like to talk to you about."

"I'm very pleased to meet you, Mayor Beame. How is John Lindsay?"

"That's what I came to speak to you about. Boy, did he leave me with a debt. Listen, Mr. President, I know you're very busy so I'll make it short. I need one and a half billion dollars or new York goes down the tube."

"Well, I'm sorry to hear that. I've always liked New York City -- just to visit, mind you. I wouldn't want to live there."

"Mr. President, Abe is really in a spot. If he doesn't get the loan, the banks are going to foreclose on his city and everyone will be out in the strteet with their furniture, which means I'd have to call out the National Guard to prevent looting."

"Well, Hugh, as you know I'm always willing to help out a Democratic city with a Democratic governor, but we're a little strapped down here right now. Have you tried the banks?"

"Have we tried the banks?" Mayor Beame said. "We've been to every bank in New York. We don't even have a friend at Chase Manhattan any more. Look, you're always bailing out those rinky-dink countries when they run out of money. Why can't you help one of your own cities?"

"We don't give them money -- we give them arms. Would you like some aniaircraft missiles or some airplanes? I'm sure I could arrange that," the President said.

"What he needs, Mr. President," Gov. Carey said, "is cash."

"You want collateral?" Mayor Beame said. "I'll put up the Bronx and Staten Island. It's unimproved land, but it would make a heckuva investment."

"Mr. Mayor," the President said, "I would love to give you the money, but what kind of precedent would I be setting if every time a city ran out of money it came running to Washington? You haye to live within your means like we do in Washington. You can't keep borrowing money all the time."

"I thought you had a 50 billion-dollar deficit this year."

"There's no reason to get snappy, Mayor," President Ford said.

Gov. Carey jumped in. "Forgive him, Mr. President, he's under a lot of tension. Isn't there some way to find some money for the mayor? What about the CIA? Certainly they could spare a billion and a half."

"The CIA only gives financial aid to put in right-wing governments. I don't think Mayor Beame's administration would qualify."

"Then give the money to overthrow me," Mayor Beame said. "I don't care how I get it."

"I'm sorry, Mayor Beame, but I can't justify any kind of a loan."

"All right then, I'll take the arms you offered me. I'll need 150 fighter bombers, 3,000 tanks and 600 ground-to-air missiles."

What for?" the President asked.

Mayor Beame replied, "The day I can't make my payroll I'm going to need all the arms I can get."

JACK ANDERSON SAYS!
Senate CIA-FBI Probe 'Nonexistent'

WASHINGTON — The select senate committee, which is investigating the CIA and FBI, has imposed airtight security on its operations. We have learned, nevertheless, that the committee has been riven by dissent, has hired few real investigators and has scarcely scratched the surface of the CIA-FBI scandals.

So serious is the situation that a responsible senior committee worker, who will be fired if he is caught, has composed an explicit memo for us on the problems.

Chairman Frank Church, D.-Idaho, "Is under a delusion he will be able to conclude the probe within the next few months," declares the handwritten report. "He lacks investigative staff to do it and has no way of knowing if the preliminary information given is either accurate or complete.

"If it is not, it means the committee will have to start from scratch again, with competent investigators to find out what the true facts are."

The memo complains that the committee has virtually ignored the military and anti-drug agencies it also is supposed to investigate. "The main preliminary work done so far has been in reference to the FBI and CIA with virtually nothing else being done concerning the rest of the committee mandate," states the memo.

At "virtually every step of the almost nonexistent investigation," it concludes, "Church has bent over backward to please the CIA."

Church is one of the most able, conscientious members of the Senate. But we have confirmed, at least, that some of his committee colleagues have complained to their staffs that Church, in his zeal to be fair-minded, has sided most often with the under-the-rug views of Sens. Barry Goldwater, R.-Ariz., and John Tower, R.-Tex.

They have taken a stern stand against the senators who favor an open as possible probe. Those who can be counted in this category are Sens. Howard Baker, R.-Tenn., Gary Hart, D.-Colo., Phil Hart, D.-Mich., Walter Mondale, D.-Minn., and Richard Schweiker, R.-Pa.

Friends of the committee have insisted to us that sweetness, light and unanimity have prevailed in the secret sessions. But this ambiance apparently can be attributed to the traditional Senate civility.

At one tightly closed meeting, for example. Sen. Robert Morgan, D.-N.C., strongly urged that any details of CIA assassination plots should be kept from the American public, our sources report. Another source said Morgan, after speaking about the assassinations, left it up in the air whether the facts should be suppressed.

There have been complaints that Church and Tower confer secretly on a wide range of subjects with the CIA but don't fully share their information with other senators.

Finally Gary Hart and Schweiker devoted a recent Saturday to a visit to CIA headquarters. They paid a call on Deputy Director Carl Duckett, the chief technologist, whose staff gave them a briefing.

Nervous CIA officials spread whispers that the visit had to do with reports that the bullet-headed Duckett would soon be named the new CIA director. Actually, Duckett stayed with the senators only a few moments.

The Church committee, meanwhile, has had trouble recruiting crack investigators. A recent bid was made to hire Washington's primo private eye, Richard Bast, who has been battling the FBI for 15 years.

Shea, who said he was speaking for staff director William Miller, invited Bast to hire "a couple other people that you trusted ... who would be supervised by you."

Describing the work, Shea said: "There are four task forces right now -- domestic intelligence, military intelligence, technological intelligence, and then 'command and control' which focuses largely on the White House."

Shea stressed, however, that "it's not going to be a witch hunt. We're trying to find information and material which show good law enforcement and good intellige intelligence operations were conducted ... It goes both ways."

Bast made a follow-up visit to the committee's heavily guarded office where he found a Capitol policeman logging every visitor. The police, Bast noted, aren't above suspicion as informants for the intelligence community. "You don't get heavy informers coming to see you with a setup like that," Bast told us.

He also learned that the committee had been working on staff credentials for two months. "That's something that could be done in two days," marveled Bast.

So he told us: "I decided they were mostly a bunch of pussycats and some were interested in a coverup. I don't want my name linked to that kind of investigation."

Footnote: Senator Church declined comment, but a spokesman ringingly defended the committee as "moving along on course." He said the charge that the probe is limited to the FBI and CIA is "utterly wrong." Moreover, he said, when more investigators are needed they will be brought in. At present, he said, the need is for skilled lawyers to question witnesses who already have been identified. There is always some dissent in every group, he said, but "so far we've avoided splits. We've been able to show unanimity."

Dear Mr. Blanton:

I have just read that the Assistant Attorney general Paul Otto has brought suit to punish the distributors of the book "THE HAPPY HOOKER".

This just about burns me completely to a well done. It is not enough, I suppose, for the imperial order of the old fat Baptist ladies to bring down their vengeful curse on liquor by the drink, legal gambling, legal possession of drugs, and movies that some crabby old bat past her prime in all ways and aspects but her ability to gripe. Let the fact that these patrons of the Lady Clarol and suphose forget that no one is forced to drink, gamble, look, or listen; let these matriarchs of an emasculated group of neer-do wells sit in the pews of un-taxed religious institutions and seek to govern the United States from their apron strings (no doubt being worn by some pip-squeek milk sop) but to solicit the help of a man, though I have some doubt that that term applies except in the loosest terms to sweet little Mr. Otto, in the office of the attorney general to whom my taxes go is unthinkable.

Up to now the meddling of the self righteous morons has helped the United States into the dubious position of having the worst drug problem and the highest suicide rate of any country in the world.

The stanchious of society themselves held erect by their whale bone corsets have finally found an ally in the form of Ms or Mr or whatever term Paul Otto goes by. Possibly they have weakened his senses with promises of a front pew.

Whatever it took to convince Mr or Ms Otto then let me suggest that he be unconvinced.

Scully is presented a model of building named in his honor

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Southeast Missouri State University's retiring president, Dr. Mark F. Scully, was presented a sterling silver model of the university's education-psychology building Thursday by the board of regents.

The regents voted last winter to name the building for the president, who will retire on June 30 after 19 years of service.

The renaming of the building took place on May 4 during ceremonies honoring Scully.

The official name of the building is now the Mark F. Scully Building, Education-Psychology.

Dr. Scully was presneted the model by Dr. William L. Tomlinson Jr. of St. Louis, the new president of the board of regents.

The education- psychology building was the last major structure to be completed during Dr. Scully's administration, a period of unprecedented growth and expansion.

5 killed on state highways

By The Associated Press

Five persons were reported killed on Missouri highways on Memorial Day, raising to 10 the number who died in traffic accidents across the state from the beginning of the holiday period count at 6 p.m. Friday.

The latest victims were Kimberly Kay Sims, 11, Garden City, Mo.; Byron Sangunett, 25, Marionville, Mo.; John Abbott, 27, Wichita; Edward P. Clinkscale, 25, Kansas City, and Mrs. Lou Ann Steele, 41, Denton, Tex.

Earlier weekend accidents claimed the lives of Alice Miller, 51, Marshall; Sarah J. O'Connor, 35, Oak Grove, Mo.; Ernest Carpenter, 66, St. Louis; Rory Adamson, 15, Hartville, Mo., and David E. Nally, 18, Blockton, Iowa.

Miss Sims and her sister, Rebecca Sue Sims, 9, were involved in a collision with a car while riding a bicycle on a gravel road near their home, southeast of Kansas City. Rebecca was treated at a Harrisonville hospital and released.

Sangunett died in a fiery mishap near Hurley, southwest of Springfield. The patrol said his auto overturned on a county road and burst into flames.

A car fell about 100 feet after going off a ledge near Joplin, carrying Abbott to his death and injuring six others. Three children and a woman were returned from the bottom on stretchers with a makeshift hoist and the dead man and two others were taken by boat across Shoal Creek at the bottom.

Kansas City police said Clinkscale's car went out of control during a predawn thunderstorm and crashed into a tree.

The Texas woman was killed when the small van she was driving collided with a truck on U.S. 60 about four miles west of Wyatt, in southeast Missouri.

Two Sikeston men receive degrees

LIBERTY — Two Sikeston residents were among the record-breaking 310-member graduating class that received diplomas Sunday at William Jewell College.

Stanley Alan McGill, 812 Harvard Drive, and received a bachelor of science degree and Richard Tedlie Watkins, 936 Moore Ave., received a bachelor of arts degree during the ceremonies.

Dr. Thomas S. Field, president of the college, presented diplomas to 162 graduates earning bachelor of arts degrees and 113 receiving bachelor of science degrees. Recognition was also accorded 35 students who are candidates for graudation at the end of the summer session in July.

Commencement speaker was Donald J. Hall, president of Hallmark Cards Inc.

Five persons were reported killed on Missouri highways on Memorial Day, raising to 10 the number who died in traffic accidents across the state from the beginning of the holiday period count at 6 p.m. Friday.

Earlier weekend accidents claimed the lives of Alice Miller, 51, Marshall; Sarah J. O'Connor, 35, Oak Grove, Mo.; Ernest Carpenter, 66, St. Louis; Rory Adamson, 15, Hartville, Mo., and David E. Nally, 18, Blockton, Iowa.

Miss Sims and her sister, Rebecca Sue Sims, 9, were involved in a collision with a car while riding a bicycle on a gravel road near their home, southeast of Kansas City. Rebecca was treated at a Harrisonville hospital and released.

Sangunett died in a fiery mishap near Hurley, southwest of Springfield. The patrol said his auto overturned on a county road and burst into flames.

A car fell about 100 feet after going off a ledge near Joplin, carrying Abbott to his death and injuring six others. Three children and a woman were returned from the bottom on stretchers with a makeshift hoist and the dead man and two others were taken by boat across Shoal Creek at the bottom.

Kansas City police said Clinkscale's car went out of control during a predawn thunderstorm and crashed into a tree.

The Texas woman was killed when the small van she was driving collided with a truck on U.S. 60 about four miles west of Wyatt, in southeast Missouri.

Two Sikeston men receive degrees

LIBERTY — Two Sikeston residents were among the record-breaking 310-member graduating class that received diplomas Sunday at William Jewell College.

Stanley Alan McGill, 812 Harvard Drive, and received a bachelor of science degree and Richard Tedlie Watkins, 936 Moore Ave., received a bachelor of arts degree during the ceremonies.

Dr. Thomas S. Field, president of the college, presented diplomas to 162 graduates earning bachelor of arts degrees and 113 receiving bachelor of science degrees. Recognition was also accorded 35 students who are candidates for graudation at the end of the summer session in July.

Commencement speaker was Donald J. Hall, president of Hallmark Cards Inc.

It's a winner

Beans prove tasty

Connie Janikula created this prize-winning dish ... Double Bean Beef Bake to please hungry appetites when company arrives. The Janikulas farm near Watertown, Minn., where Mrs. Janikula takes night courses. She also likes to experiment with new recipes and garden.

DOUBLE BEAN BEEF BAKE

1¼ pounds ground beef
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 to 3 tsp. soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced or ⅛ tsp. instant minced garlic
3-ounce can French fried onions, crushed (reserve part for topping)
16-ounce can (2 cups) kidney beans, drained
16-ounce can (1¾ cups) baked beans
15-ounce can (one and two thirds cups) tomato sauce
4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces, drained

TOPPING

1½ cups pancake mix
remaining French fried onions
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup (4 ounce) shredded Cheddar or American cheese
1 tbsp. sesame seed

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Brown ground beef with green pepper, soy sauce and garlic; drain. Stir in one-half cup French fried onions, beans, tomato sauce and mushrooms; heat until bubbly. Spoon into shallow three-quart casserole or 13x9-inch pan. (Lightly spoon pancake mix into measuring cup; level off.) In medium bowl, combine pancake mix with remaining French fried onions, sour cream and one-half cup cheese; blend well. (Mixture will be quite thick.) Spoon over hot meat mixture. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and sesame seed. Bake uncovered for 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Serve hot. Refrigerate any leftovers. Yeild: 8 (1 cup) servings.

Aging Council to meet June 3

BENTON — The Scott County Council on Aging will meet at 7:30 p.m., June 3 in the Scott County Courthouse courtroom.

Officers are Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, president, Adam Melzer, vice president, and Mrs. Bonnie Strickland, secretary, of Sikeston.

Household hints

When you make French toast, try adding a little sugar to the egg-and-milk mixture in which you dip the bread. The addition helps the bread brown well when it is fried.

Former art teacher to hold workshops

Artist Jean Love of Orange, Va., formerly a Sikeston art teacher, will be in Sikeston June 2 through June 14, teaching artists of all ages.

The Sikeston Art League, in cooperation with the Missouri State Counsil on the Arts, will sponsor Miss Love as an artist-in-resiccence during these two weeks. She will teach beginning and advanced drawing and possibly painting with color.

Workshops have been scheduled at the Sikeston Activity Center, 200 S. Kingshighway and a small fee will be charged for each three-day workshop.

Workshops have been scheduled as follows: 7, 8 and 9-year-olds, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m, June 3, 5 and 9; 10 and 11-year-olds, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., June 2, 4 and 6; 12, 13 and 14-year-olds, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. June 3, 5, and 9; and 15 to 19-year-olds, 1:30 to 3:30, June 6, 10 and 12.

Two adult sessions have been scheduled for 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., June 2, 11 and 13; and 7 to 9 p.m., June 4, 10 and 12.

Those interested in attending may enroll by sending their name, address, age and telephone number to Mrs. Diane Hahs, 508 School St., Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Getting married?

The Daily Standard now has new wedding forms available at the women's page desk and at the front office. Business hours are from 7 a.m., to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided. The deadline for weddings is three weeks after date of wedding. There is no charge for running a wedding. We are happy to publish it.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My niece's little boy spilled half a bottle of mercurochrome on a gold-colored shag rug. She went to work on it immediately but was left with a pale pinkish circle that is very conspicuous. Is there any way to remove this stain? — EDNA.

DEAR EDNA — Authorities tell us that mercurochrome stains should be handled by a professional cleaner but are more often than not impossible to remove. However, if she wants to keep trying, and with no assurance that it will work, she might use a solution of a teaspoon of a natural detergent and a teaspoon of white vinegar added to a quart of warm water. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — The carpets in our dining room and kitchen had lots of spots and my husband had the bright idea of using a window glass cleaner on the carpets as well-known spot lifter had done no good. He sponged this on the spots and then rubbed it in with a brush and dried the areas with paper towels. Our carpets look like new and with no spots. (As always test first.) — MRS. E.S.

DEAR POLLY — One of my Pet Peeves is with the elastic in readymade garments. That in underwear and pajamas never lasts as long as the garments do. It seems the manufacturers could use a better quality. How would I put wide elastic in the waist of pajamas? — E.T.S.

DEAR E.T.S. — Elastic too wide to slip through a casing at the waist of pajama pants is best stitched to the inside with the zigzag stitch on the sewing machine. Of course, the easiest way when making new pajamas and when replacing elastic is to run it through a casing. Face or hem back the top of the pajama pants leaving an opening for the elastic. Edge stitch on the top fold, insert elastic and close opening. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — We needed a long zipper for a quilt cover and did not have one on hand that was long enough. My daughter suggested using two zippers that added up to the required length. By placing the zippers so the openings faced each other this worked just fine. — WILMA.

Mother endorses tea-sets for boys

Dear Ann Landers: I was very surprised when you raised the question, "Why would anyone give a boy a tea-set?" A tea-set isn't going to hurt a boy or create a sexual identity crisis. It's the attitude of parents that does the damage.

In our neighborhood, boys as well as girls have tea-sets. They enjoy using them for "pretending" as well s for serving fruit juice and cookies to their playmates. Why not? Cowboys, cops, robbers, soldiers, sailors, explorers and doctors all eat, don't they?

It's foolish to think that just because a child is a male he will never have to prepare or serve a meal. There's no excuse for a man to be helpless in the kitchen. If a parent can't handle the idea of a tea-set for a boy, let him call it a "chow set" or a "mess kit." -- Equal Opportunity Mother.

Dear Equal Opp Mon: You have a point. On with the chow sets or mess kits. But don't you agree "tea-set" sounds a bit dainty?

Dear Ann Landers: Do you have room for one more letter commenting on the daughter who found pictures of her late father in pornographic poses? I agree there is something perverse in this, give us a break, Ann.

I am one of the tens of thousands of bisexuals in this country. For the most part, we move about freely, contributing much to a society that would condemn us if they saw the flip side. Most people see me as a husband, father and businessman. I'm damned good at all three. My business demands that I travel. At least once a week my homosexual lover meets me.

We usually go out for drinks, dinner and dancing in one of the gay bars you'll find in big cities. There you can see everything from screaming faggots in drag to quiet, dignified A.C.-D.C. businessmen, like myself. We didn't ask to be this way. But we are, and we make do.

I've never embarrassed my family and I never will -- because they won't know. I have no secret collection of clothes, photos or address books. All my gay connections are stored in my head.

For years your column has been a forum for shedding light on verboten subjects. Please don't lump us together in the "severe-personality- disorder" category. Another label, we don't need. -- Ramada Kid

Dear Kid: Thanks for a good letter. I understand your dilemm and I sympathize with you. But you can't expect to play the game and escape the name.

A married man who meets his homosexual lover every week is not a normal male, in my book. I don't like labels either, but when people ask me what is wrong with men who behave like that, I must say they are victims of a severe personality disorder.

Dear Ann Landers: My best friend's husband has been trying to convince me that he has exactly what I need to make my life complete.

I've discoraged him as best I can but he continues to be very aggressive. All the while, this egomaniac is pretending to be a friend of my husband.

What should I do about the jerk? He's making me nervous. -- Unwilling In Port Clinton, Ohio

Dear Un: Why don't you make HIM nervous? The next time he tries to get chymmy, tellhim you're going to ask two people to help you convince him that you aren't interested -- his wife and your husband.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious -- lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

It's a winner

Beans prove tasty

Connie Janikula created this prize-winning dish ... Double Bean Beef Bake to please hungry appetites when company arrives. The Janikulas farm near Watertown, Minn., where Mrs. Janikula takes night courses. She also likes to experiment with new recipes and garden.

DOUBLE BEAN BEEF BAKE

1¼ pounds ground beef
¼ cup chopped green pepper
2 to 3 tsp. soy sauce
1 clove garlic, minced or ⅛ tsp. instant minced garlic
3-ounce can French fried onions, crushed (reserve part for topping)
16-ounce can (2 cups) kidney beans, drained
16-ounce can (1¾ cups) baked beans
15-ounce can (one and two thirds cups) tomato sauce
4-ounce can mushroom stems and pieces, drained

TOPPING

1½ cups pancake mix
remaining French fried onions
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup (4 ounce) shredded Cheddar or American cheese
1 tbsp. sesame seed

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Brown ground beef with green pepper, soy sauce and garlic; drain. Stir in one-half cup French fried onions, beans, tomato sauce and mushrooms; heat until bubbly. Spoon into shallow three-quart casserole or 13x9-inch pan. (Lightly spoon pancake mix into measuring cup; level off.) In medium bowl, combine pancake mix with remaining French fried onions, sour cream and one-half cup cheese; blend well. (Mixture will be quite thick.) Spoon over hot meat mixture. Sprinkle with remaining cheese and sesame seed. Bake uncovered for 25 to 30 minutes until golden brown. Serve hot. Refrigerate any leftovers. Yeild: 8 (1 cup) servings.

Aging Council to meet June 3

BENTON — The Scott County Council on Aging will meet at 7:30 p.m., June 3 in the Scott County Courthouse courtroom.

Officers are Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, president, Adam Melzer, vice president, and Mrs. Bonnie Strickland, secretary, of Sikeston.

Household hints

When you make French toast, try adding a little sugar to the egg-and-milk mixture in which you dip the bread. The addition helps the bread brown well when it is fried.

Former art teacher to hold workshops

Artist Jean Love of Orange, Va., formerly a Sikeston art teacher, will be in Sikeston June 2 through June 14, teaching artists of all ages.

The Sikeston Art League, in cooperation with the Missouri State Counsil on the Arts, will sponsor Miss Love as an artist-in-resiccence during these two weeks. She will teach beginning and advanced drawing and possibly painting with color.

Workshops have been scheduled at the Sikeston Activity Center, 200 S. Kingshighway and a small fee will be charged for each three-day workshop.

Workshops have been scheduled as follows: 7, 8 and 9-year-olds, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m, June 3, 5 and 9; 10 and 11-year-olds, 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., June 2, 4 and 6; 12, 13 and 14-year-olds, 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. June 3, 5, and 9; and 15 to 19-year-olds, 1:30 to 3:30, June 6, 10 and 12.

Two adult sessions have been scheduled for 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., June 2, 11 and 13; and 7 to 9 p.m., June 4, 10 and 12.

Those interested in attending may enroll by sending their name, address, age and telephone number to Mrs. Diane Hahs, 508 School St., Sikeston, Mo. 63801

Getting married?

The Daily Standard now has new wedding forms available at the women's page desk and at the front office. Business hours are from 7 a.m., to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Forms will be mailed if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is provided. The deadline for weddings is three weeks after date of wedding. There is no charge for running a wedding. We are happy to publish it.

Golden state NBA champs

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State fans cut down the nets after the Warriors won the third straight game of the championship series, but after the fourth victory, they stole owner Franklin Mieuli's hat and broke through police lines at San Francisco International Airport.

"We're number one, we're number one," an exuberant crowd of 3,000 chanted Monday as the Warriors came home kings of the National Basketball Association. The throng was restrained by a cordon of police until they caught sight of their deplaning heroes.

Sixty San Mateo County Sheriff's deputies and airport police stood by helplessly when the fans surged past them, swarming over taxi cabs for a better look at the Warriors.

They waved signs such as "Go Warriors Go" and "Only the Warriors do things right in Washington," where they beat the Bullets 96-95 Sunday for the title.

Coach Al Attles mounted a makeshift platform along with his players and thanked the crowd for their support. San Francisco County Supervisor Bob Mendlesohn, acting mayor, declared this Warrior Week here, saying, "We're happy to share this championship with Oakland."

"The fans were great," shouted Rick Barry, who scored 20 points in Sunday's victory. "We couldn't have done it without the fans." The crowd screamed happily.

Meanwhile, Mieuli scanned the group hoping to catch a glimpse of his checkered deerstalker cap. "Somebody stole my hat," the owner muttered.

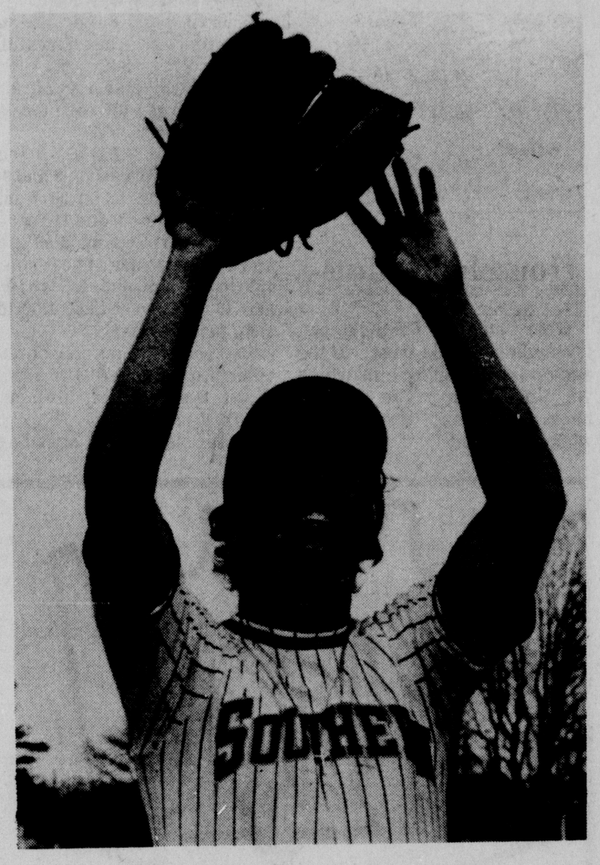
Southeast Missouri athletes started for Missouri Southern on the baseball diamond this spring. Bob Blankenship, top right, stands with coach Ed Wuch after finishing with a 5-1 season record, and a — 3.50 earned run mark, working mostly in relief. Lilbourn's Pat McClarty, lower right, finished 10th nationally in the NAIA batting race with a .463 mark and first in district 16. His 18 doubles tied him with two others for first place nationally. Southern finished.



Littler claims Memphis title

MEMPHIS (AP) — Even the losers are pleased when Gene Littler wins.

The 44-year-old Littler fired four consecutive birdies Sunday and finished up with a five-stroke victory over John Mahaffey in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic, and the second-finisher was as happy as if their roles had been reversed ... almost.

"If I couldn't win this golf tournament, I think it's the greatest thing in the world for Gene Littler to do it," said Mahaffey, who began the final round in a tie for the top.

"To me, he is the epitome of golf. He is not egotistical, and is a perfect gentleman. I think that if all the young players coming up would model themselves after Littler, we'd have a helluva tour."

Littler was glad, but less effusive, after his second victory of the year. "It's very gratifying" the slightly-built, soft-spoken veteran said.

It must have been. He shot a six-under-apar 66 in the closing round- built on the foundation of birdies on his first four holes — for the best performance of the day. His total of 270 was a distant 18 under par, a record for the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club.

Littler's victory also clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team, which he's made every time since 1961, except for the time he was sidelined by cancer surgery.

Mahaffey, who had to take off a shoe, roll up a pants leg, and go wading after one watery shot, ended up with a 71 and a 275 total. It was the second time this year, and the fifth in 17 months, that he had finished second.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf tied for third at 277. Each had a 68. Nicklaus' round included a birdie on the final hole, while Weiskopf got off to a birdie-eagle-birdie start, went six under through six holes and then finished poorly.

Lee Trevino trailed with a closing 70 for 284, while Gary Player, the 1974 Memphis champion, was well back at 286 after a 74.

Nicklaus won $10,325 and moved well in front of the absent Johnny Miller in the race for the season's money-winning title. Nicklaus now has $165,800, Miller $155,233. Littler's share of the purse was $35,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to $110,555.

GONZALES, La. (AP) — Louisiana State University basketball Coach Dale Brown was arrested for allegedly interfering with a police officer when his assistant coach was stopped for a speeding violation, the Ascension Parish sheriff's office said.

Brown was reportedly a passenger in a car being driven by his assistant coach Arthur Tollis, when deputies stopped them for speeding.

Sheriff Harold Tridico said his deputies used a loudspeaker to ask the driver to step out of the car. Tollis got out, and Brown got out at the same time.

Brown refused to get back into the car, even after deputies repeated the request several times, Tridico said.

Brown was released on cash bond, and Tollis received a citation for speeding, the sheriff said.

The incident occured on U.S. 61 south of Sorrento early Saturday morning, he said.

Knievel cracks up

LONDON (AP) — Evel Knievel said he would never jump again after suffering painful injuries in a motorcycle leap over 13 single-deck London buses that he thought failed to set a distance record.

But promoters of the stunt and most of the newsmen who watched the 35-year-old American daredevil hit the dust at 100 miles an hour Monday night accepted the claim of his aides that he had set a new flying motorcycle mark of 140 feet.

"In two or three days, Evel may well reconsider the decision not to ride again," said his publicity man. "He is in considerable pain and the last thing in the world he wants to be thinking about at this stage is riding a bike."

A few persons said they thought Knievel's 750cc Harley Davidson touched the roof of the 13th bus and that caused him to fall before 70,000 screaming spectators in London's Wembley Stadium. But most of the experts agreed he cleared the buses and crashed on landing.

The publicity man, Brian Cartnell, said the motorcycle split a plywood plank when it came down, throwing Evel and the bike into the air. The motorcycle landed on top of him.

He limped to a microphone, his costume in tatters and his face blackened, and told the crowd:

"Ladies and gentlemen of this wonderful country, I have got to tell you that you are the last people to see me jump. I shall never jump again and that is the truth. I am through."

Then he was rushed to the London Hospital. Cartnell said he had a crushed vertebra in the middle of his back, a fracture of the right hand, other spinal damage and severe bruises.

The 140-foot jump bettered Knievel's previous mark of 104 feet, set in Toronto, and was the second longest he had ever attempted. The longest was his unsuccessful attempt to rocket over the Snake River Canyon in Idaho last September. Before that, he had tried to hurtle himself over cars, trucks and other objects more than 300 times. He failed in 11 attempts and broke 50 bones.

The accident forced Knievel to cancel the rest of a British tour.

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There were fewer disorderly fans at this year's Indianapolis 500-mile race, says Municipal Cout Judge Dave A. Jester.

Only 28 persons were slated to appear before him as a result of arrests over the 500 weekend. Jester heard 86 cases last year after the race.

Of the 28 arrested, nearly half were drinking-related, Jester said. Sixteen of the charges were disposed of Monday, resulting in fines totaling $560. The rest face court appearances later.

A police spokesman said the crowd was "noisier and rowdier but the fans listened to police officers. For the most part they behaved and had a good time."

Golden state NBA champs

OAKLAND (AP) — The Golden State fans cut down the nets after the Warriors won the third straight game of the championship series, but after the fourth victory, they stole owner Franklin Mieuli's hat and broke through police lines at San Francisco International Airport.

"We're number one, we're number one," an exuberant crowd of 3,000 chanted Monday as the Warriors came home kings of the National Basketball Association. The throng was restrained by a cordon of police until they caught sight of their deplaning heroes.

Sixty San Mateo County Sheriff's deputies and airport police stood by helplessly when the fans surged past them, swarming over taxi cabs for a better look at the Warriors.

They waved signs such as "Go Warriors Go" and "Only the Warriors do things right in Washington," where they beat the Bullets 96-95 Sunday for the title.

Coach Al Attles mounted a makeshift platform along with his players and thanked the crowd for their support. San Francisco County Supervisor Bob Mendlesohn, acting mayor, declared this Warrior Week here, saying, "We're happy to share this championship with Oakland."

"The fans were great," shouted Rick Barry, who scored 20 points in Sunday's victory. "We couldn't have done it without the fans." The crowd screamed happily.

Meanwhile, Mieuli scanned the group hoping to catch a glimpse of his checkered deerstalker cap. "Somebody stole my hat," the owner muttered.

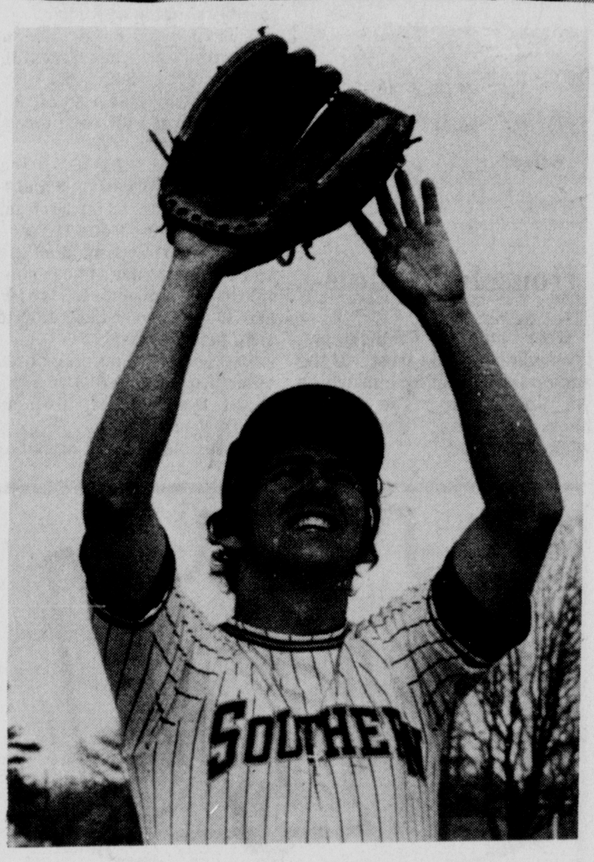
Southeast Missouri athletes started for Missouri Southern on the baseball diamond this spring. Bob Blankenship, top right, stands with coach Ed Wuch after finishing with a 5-1 season record, and a — 3.50 earned run mark, working mostly in relief. Lilbourn's Pat McClarty, lower right, finished 10th nationally in the NAIA batting race with a .463 mark and first in district 16. His 18 doubles tied him with two others for first place nationally. Southern finished.



Littler claims Memphis title

MEMPHIS (AP) — Even the losers are pleased when Gene Littler wins.

The 44-year-old Littler fired four consecutive birdies Sunday and finished up with a five-stroke victory over John Mahaffey in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic, and the second-finisher was as happy as if their roles had been reversed ... almost.

"If I couldn't win this golf tournament, I think it's the greatest thing in the world for Gene Littler to do it," said Mahaffey, who began the final round in a tie for the top.

"To me, he is the epitome of golf. He is not egotistical, and is a perfect gentleman. I think that if all the young players coming up would model themselves after Littler, we'd have a helluva tour."

Littler was glad, but less effusive, after his second victory of the year. "It's very gratifying" the slightly-built, soft-spoken veteran said.

It must have been. He shot a six-under-apar 66 in the closing round- built on the foundation of birdies on his first four holes — for the best performance of the day. His total of 270 was a distant 18 under par, a record for the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club.

Littler's victory also clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team, which he's made every time since 1961, except for the time he was sidelined by cancer surgery.

Mahaffey, who had to take off a shoe, roll up a pants leg, and go wading after one watery shot, ended up with a 71 and a 275 total. It was the second time this year, and the fifth in 17 months, that he had finished second.

Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf tied for third at 277. Each had a 68. Nicklaus' round included a birdie on the final hole, while Weiskopf got off to a birdie-eagle-birdie start, went six under through six holes and then finished poorly.

Lee Trevino trailed with a closing 70 for 284, while Gary Player, the 1974 Memphis champion, was well back at 286 after a 74.

Nicklaus won $10,325 and moved well in front of the absent Johnny Miller in the race for the season's money-winning title. Nicklaus now has $165,800, Miller $155,233. Littler's share of the purse was $35,000 and pushed his winnings for the year to $110,555.

GONZALES, La. (AP) — Louisiana State University basketball Coach Dale Brown was arrested for allegedly interfering with a police officer when his assistant coach was stopped for a speeding violation, the Ascension Parish sheriff's office said.

Brown was reportedly a passenger in a car being driven by his assistant coach Arthur Tollis, when deputies stopped them for speeding.

Sheriff Harold Tridico said his deputies used a loudspeaker to ask the driver to step out of the car. Tollis got out, and Brown got out at the same time.

Brown refused to get back into the car, even after deputies repeated the request several times, Tridico said.

Brown was released on cash bond, and Tollis received a citation for speeding, the sheriff said.

The incident occured on U.S. 61 south of Sorrento early Saturday morning, he said.

Knievel cracks up

LONDON (AP) — Evel Knievel said he would never jump again after suffering painful injuries in a motorcycle leap over 13 single-deck London buses that he thought failed to set a distance record.

But promoters of the stunt and most of the newsmen who watched the 35-year-old American daredevil hit the dust at 100 miles an hour Monday night accepted the claim of his aides that he had set a new flying motorcycle mark of 140 feet.

"In two or three days, Evel may well reconsider the decision not to ride again," said his publicity man. "He is in considerable pain and the last thing in the world he wants to be thinking about at this stage is riding a bike."

A few persons said they thought Knievel's 750cc Harley Davidson touched the roof of the 13th bus and that caused him to fall before 70,000 screaming spectators in London's Wembley Stadium. But most of the experts agreed he cleared the buses and crashed on landing.

The publicity man, Brian Cartnell, said the motorcycle split a plywood plank when it came down, throwing Evel and the bike into the air. The motorcycle landed on top of him.

He limped to a microphone, his costume in tatters and his face blackened, and told the crowd:

"Ladies and gentlemen of this wonderful country, I have got to tell you that you are the last people to see me jump. I shall never jump again and that is the truth. I am through."

Then he was rushed to the London Hospital. Cartnell said he had a crushed vertebra in the middle of his back, a fracture of the right hand, other spinal damage and severe bruises.

The 140-foot jump bettered Knievel's previous mark of 104 feet, set in Toronto, and was the second longest he had ever attempted. The longest was his unsuccessful attempt to rocket over the Snake River Canyon in Idaho last September. Before that, he had tried to hurtle himself over cars, trucks and other objects more than 300 times. He failed in 11 attempts and broke 50 bones.

The accident forced Knievel to cancel the rest of a British tour.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There were fewer disorderly fans at this year's Indianapolis 500-mile race, says Municipal Cout Judge Dave A. Jester.

Only 28 persons were slated to appear before him as a result of arrests over the 500 weekend. Jester heard 86 cases last year after the race.

Of the 28 arrested, nearly half were drinking-related, Jester said. Sixteen of the charges were disposed of Monday, resulting in fines totaling $560. The rest face court appearances later.

A police spokesman said the crowd was "noisier and rowdier but the fans listened to police officers. For the most part they behaved and had a good time."

Chaffee state champs

WASHINGTON, Mo. — Sophomore Scott Wachter pitched and hit Chaffee to the class A state baseball title here Saturday afternoon, fashioning a one-hit 7-2 victory over home-town favorite —St. Francis Borgia in a rain shortened battle.

Wachter paced the Red Devils nine hit attack with two doubles and scored one run while he and his terammates took care of the host in five and two third innings. A mid-afternoon downpour forced the game to be called in the top of the sixth with Chaffee batting with two out.

Chaffee took advantage of three Borgia errors to run up a 6-0 lead in the first three innings. Borgia also made the best of three Red Devil miscues to score its lone runs in the fourth.

Coach Mike Payne, who voiced his displeasure after his team failed to score in the first inning after having the bases loaded with only one out, was all smiles in the second frame after four runs had crossed the plate on two hites.

Dennis Bess got things rolling for the Red Devils in the second inning after one out when he walked and scored on Randy Newcomer's bunt that was fielded and thrown to the center field fence in an attempt to get the lead runner. Newcomer also circled the base on the big Knights miscue. Chaffee added another run via their opponents miscue after Tim Spencer singled and Lindy Duncan bunted safely. Spencer advanced to third on a late throw to first after the thirdbaseman charged the bunt and left third base uncovered and scored on an overthrow. Duncan scored the fourth run of the inning when Wachter hit a long sacrifice to centerfield.

Chaffee added two runs to their lead in the third when David McConnell doubled and Neil Stubbs walked. The pair moved to second and third on Jay McGuire's sacrifice and scored on Newcomer's single. The final Red Devil run came with one out when Wachter doubled and scored on Don Kiefer's single.

"I've only had a full squad since the playoffs began," Coach Payne noted. "We had some bad luck with illness and injuries early in the season and just got everybody together."

But you couldn't tell it. The Red Devils used their baseball talents to the fullest in racing to the schools first state title and a 15-7 season record. Chaffee had a 7-5 mark going into district play.

"We committed a couple of errors and allowed Borgia to score twice," Payne commented. "Actually, Scott should have had a shutout." Chaffee made some good plays behind their ace, as they did Friday to back Newcomer's no-hit performance.

The championship finished a very successful spring sports program for CHS, whose track team finished third two weeks ago and claimed the schools first state tournament honors.

Chaffee's roster showed only four seniors of which only three start. 1976 should be an interesting season for the state champs.

Cardinals blow lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager John McNamara thinks Bill Greif could be another Rollie Fingers in relief, and his San Diego Padres protege tends to concur.

"Bill Posedel and I felt that way last year," said McNamara after Greif stymied a late St. Louis Cardinals threat to emerge the winner in a 9-6 Padres triumph Monday night.

"He's the kind of power pitcher who can come in and strike somebody out," noted McNamara, who converted Greif from a starter this spring.

"We had to make him understand it wasn't a demotion," McNamara added. "It's an adjustment for him, but we feel he's mentally suited for it and physically suited for it."

Greif, who last season lost 19 games, upheld McNamara's appraisal on the mound and later in the Padres' clubhouse following his 18th relief role.

"We'd talked about it before," acknowledged the blond, 6-foot-5 hurler, who worked 1 1-3 hitless inning as the fourth of five San Diego pitchers.

"He (McNamara) came up to me this year and asked me if it could be worked out, so I said 'fine.' But before we made the decision, we agreed that if it didn't work I'd go back."

In relief of Dave Tomlin, Greif entered the game with the Padres and Cards tied 6-6 and Mario Guerrero and Lou Brock on the basepaths with two out in the seventh.

The fleet Brock stole his 13th base unchallenged as Guerrero remained at third, but the Cards' bid to take the lead died as Ted Sizemore struck out.

"It's a good job in a situation like tonight when you can come in with the game on the line," reflected Greif, who squared his record at 1-1 with the aid of Danny Frisella's final-inning mopup.

"I was just trying to throw the ball as hard as I could and see what happened," he remarked in respect to the Sizemore strikeout.

San Diego's victory, its eighth in 11 games, was achieved via a three-run rally in the ninth constructed around Willie McCovey's run-scoring single.

Hrabosky then twice shook off catcher Ted Simmons' signals while facing McCovey and afterward served a fast ball the aging first baseman laced to left-center to score Hernandez and snap the tie.

"I had the worst stuff I've had all year," complained Hrabosky, who entered with a 1.57 earned run average and a string of 11 1-3 scoreless innings covering 10 relief appearances.

"The thing I feel bad about is it would've been Gibson's 250th win," Hrabosky said. "It's something I'd like to have had a save in."

Vanduser edges Cape A's 3-1

Vanduser edged a win over the Cape A's Friday night by the score of 3-1. The winning pitcher, O'Donnell, allowed only a total of five hits in the game and fanned three batters. Smith, the losing pitcher, fanned two and allowed seven hits. The win put Vanduser's record at 4-3 and their overall season record at 8-4. Vanduser will meet Kelly Electric of Kennett at 7 today for a doubleheader. Vanduser will then see action again Wednesday night when they will be pitted against Sikeston.

The most outstanding inning of play for the Vanduser team was the third when they scored two runs. The only other run made came in the sixth inning. The A's scored their only run in the second. The Cape A's took a second inning lead of 1-0 but Vanduser then jumped ahead by scoring two runs in the third to lead 2-1. Vanduser put the icing on the cake when they knocked in another run in the sixth and the A's remained scoreless for the rest of the game.

In the hitting department, the two teams were almost as evenly matched as they were intheir scoring. Vanduser had a total of seven hits and the Cape A's were very close behind with a total of five. The leading hit knockers for Vanduser were Charlie Dye with two smashes, Graviett, Pobst, Dover, Scott, and Mays all with one hit each. Charlie Dye had the best performance with two doubles, one coming in the third and one in the sixth inning. For Cape, Smith, Muller, McConnell, Coff, and Nix all had one smash each. Smith belted a triple to claim the honor as the betst hitter for the team.

The leading scorers for Vanduser were Dye, Graviett, and Mays who all scored the only runs for the team. For the Cape A's, Nix was the only scorer for the team.

Chaffee state champs

WASHINGTON, Mo. — Sophomore Scott Wachter pitched and hit Chaffee to the class A state baseball title here Saturday afternoon, fashioning a one-hit 7-2 victory over home-town favorite —St. Francis Borgia in a rain shortened battle.

Wachter paced the Red Devils nine hit attack with two doubles and scored one run while he and his terammates took care of the host in five and two third innings. A mid-afternoon downpour forced the game to be called in the top of the sixth with Chaffee batting with two out.

Chaffee took advantage of three Borgia errors to run up a 6-0 lead in the first three innings. Borgia also made the best of three Red Devil miscues to score its lone runs in the fourth.

Coach Mike Payne, who voiced his displeasure after his team failed to score in the first inning after having the bases loaded with only one out, was all smiles in the second frame after four runs had crossed the plate on two hites.

Dennis Bess got things rolling for the Red Devils in the second inning after one out when he walked and scored on Randy Newcomer's bunt that was fielded and thrown to the center field fence in an attempt to get the lead runner. Newcomer also circled the base on the big Knights miscue. Chaffee added another run via their opponents miscue after Tim Spencer singled and Lindy Duncan bunted safely. Spencer advanced to third on a late throw to first after the thirdbaseman charged the bunt and left third base uncovered and scored on an overthrow. Duncan scored the fourth run of the inning when Wachter hit a long sacrifice to centerfield.

Chaffee added two runs to their lead in the third when David McConnell doubled and Neil Stubbs walked. The pair moved to second and third on Jay McGuire's sacrifice and scored on Newcomer's single. The final Red Devil run came with one out when Wachter doubled and scored on Don Kiefer's single.

"I've only had a full squad since the playoffs began," Coach Payne noted. "We had some bad luck with illness and injuries early in the season and just got everybody together."

But you couldn't tell it. The Red Devils used their baseball talents to the fullest in racing to the schools first state title and a 15-7 season record. Chaffee had a 7-5 mark going into district play.

"We committed a couple of errors and allowed Borgia to score twice," Payne commented. "Actually, Scott should have had a shutout." Chaffee made some good plays behind their ace, as they did Friday to back Newcomer's no-hit performance.

The championship finished a very successful spring sports program for CHS, whose track team finished third two weeks ago and claimed the schools first state tournament honors.

Chaffee's roster showed only four seniors of which only three start. 1976 should be an interesting season for the state champs.

Vanduser edges Cape A's 3-1

Vanduser edged a win over the Cape A's Friday night by the score of 3-1. The winning pitcher, O'Donnell, allowed only a total of five hits in the game and fanned three batters. Smith, the losing pitcher, fanned two and allowed seven hits. The win put Vanduser's record at 4-3 and their overall season record at 8-4. Vanduser will meet Kelly Electric of Kennett at 7 today for a doubleheader. Vanduser will then see action again Wednesday night when they will be pitted against Sikeston.

The most outstanding inning of play for the Vanduser team was the third when they scored two runs. The only other run made came in the sixth inning. The A's scored their only run in the second. The Cape A's took a second inning lead of 1-0 but Vanduser then jumped ahead by scoring two runs in the third to lead 2-1. Vanduser put the icing on the cake when they knocked in another run in the sixth and the A's remained scoreless for the rest of the game.

In the hitting department, the two teams were almost as evenly matched as they were intheir scoring. Vanduser had a total of seven hits and the Cape A's were very close behind with a total of five. The leading hit knockers for Vanduser were Charlie Dye with two smashes, Graviett, Pobst, Dover, Scott, and Mays all with one hit each. Charlie Dye had the best performance with two doubles, one coming in the third and one in the sixth inning. For Cape, Smith, Muller, McConnell, Coff, and Nix all had one smash each. Smith belted a triple to claim the honor as the betst hitter for the team.

The leading scorers for Vanduser were Dye, Graviett, and Mays who all scored the only runs for the team. For the Cape A's, Nix was the only scorer for the team.

Cardinals blow lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager John McNamara thinks Bill Greif could be another Rollie Fingers in relief, and his San Diego Padres protege tends to concur.

"Bill Posedel and I felt that way last year," said McNamara after Greif stymied a late St. Louis Cardinals threat to emerge the winner in a 9-6 Padres triumph Monday night.

"He's the kind of power pitcher who can come in and strike somebody out," noted McNamara, who converted Greif from a starter this spring.

"We had to make him understand it wasn't a demotion," McNamara added. "It's an adjustment for him, but we feel he's mentally suited for it and physically suited for it."

Greif, who last season lost 19 games, upheld McNamara's appraisal on the mound and later in the Padres' clubhouse following his 18th relief role.

"We'd talked about it before," acknowledged the blond, 6-foot-5 hurler, who worked 1 1-3 hitless inning as the fourth of five San Diego pitchers.

"He (McNamara) came up to me this year and asked me if it could be worked out, so I said 'fine.' But before we made the decision, we agreed that if it didn't work I'd go back."

In relief of Dave Tomlin, Greif entered the game with the Padres and Cards tied 6-6 and Mario Guerrero and Lou Brock on the basepaths with two out in the seventh.

The fleet Brock stole his 13th base unchallenged as Guerrero remained at third, but the Cards' bid to take the lead died as Ted Sizemore struck out.

"It's a good job in a situation like tonight when you can come in with the game on the line," reflected Greif, who squared his record at 1-1 with the aid of Danny Frisella's final-inning mopup.

"I was just trying to throw the ball as hard as I could and see what happened," he remarked in respect to the Sizemore strikeout.

San Diego's victory, its eighth in 11 games, was achieved via a three-run rally in the ninth constructed around Willie McCovey's run-scoring single.

Hrabosky then twice shook off catcher Ted Simmons' signals while facing McCovey and afterward served a fast ball the aging first baseman laced to left-center to score Hernandez and snap the tie.

"I had the worst stuff I've had all year," complained Hrabosky, who entered with a 1.57 earned run average and a string of 11 1-3 scoreless innings covering 10 relief appearances.

"The thing I feel bad about is it would've been Gibson's 250th win," Hrabosky said. "It's something I'd like to have had a save in."

State board of education will defend constitution

JEFFERSON CITY — The State Board of Education will continue to defend the Constitution of the state of Missouri and will abide by future decisions of the courts in regard to educational programs for nonpublic school children.

This position of the state board was emphasized in a letter to Gov. Christopher Bond on April 25, by Mrs. Eleanor Griffith, president of the Board of Education.

Final drafts of the board's position were completed and delivered to the governor's office during theApril meeting of the board in Jefferson City.

The board's position in the administration of federally funded educational programs was developed following a letter to Gov. Bond on April 11 from Cardinal Carberry, archbishop of St. Louis, in which he charged the state board with disregaridng federal laws and denying benefits to nonpublic students.

Capsuling the board of education's position, Mrs. Griffith said:

"The State Board of Education has not attempted to disregard federal laws and regulations, but rather, has applied them in a matter consistent with the state constitution and statutes, which the board is bound to follow.

"We believe the evidence supports the position that the State Board of Education has acted in good faith, both in its administration of federal educational programs and in its attempts to reach correct legal interpretations."

Accompanying the letter to Gov. Bond was a summary of court proceedings dealing with the constitutional issue of whether or not the state board can legally provide funds for nonpublic educational programs.

In this summary, Mrs. Griffith noted that members of the board take an oath to "preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States and the constitution of the state of Missouri."

The summary also noted, contrary to some published reports, that the issue of nonpublic participation in federal educational programs is still before the courts.

In fact, decisions on two suits are pending, one before the U. S. Supreme Court, the other before the Circuit Court at Kansas City.At the heart of both cases is whether or not federal funds are public funds.

Other action by the board of education included:

— Approved the issuance of a superintendent's certificate to Dr. Jerome Davis, recently named to head the special school district of St. Louis County. Dr. Davis is scheduled to assume this position July 1.

Cuban paradise:

'Something far different'

By RONALD REAGAN
Copley News Service

Last fall, when two U.S. senators visited Havana, they had to sit through a long anti-U.S. speech by Cuban dictator Fidel Castro before he sat down to dinner with them.

Far from complaining, they came home confidently predicting and extolling "normalized" relations between the United States and Cuba – without so much as a word about quid pro quo conditions to be placed on any negotiatioins.

Castro doesn't seem as naive. Recently, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., and a troop of newsmen went to Cuba and Castro was expansive by comparison to his earlier performance. He submitted to a wide-ranging news conference and intimated that he would consider releasing nine American prisoners and $2 million of impounded airline hijack ransom money as a "gesture" toward better relations with the United States. All this underscores the fact he needs us more than we need him.

Since 1962, the trade embargo of the Organization of American States (OAS) has had a marked effect on Cuba. The island's economy is not much above the subsistence level. Even if the OAS should vote to lift the embargo, allowing member nations to decide on trade individually, it is the potentiality of trade with the United States which is most important to the Cubans.

If our diplomats hold this card in their hand it can bring important concessions of freedom for the Cuban people by their dictator.

Since the success of his 1959 revolution, Castro has managed to reduce his people to a level of egalitarian serfdom, all working for the state. Personal freedoms are nonexistent, and there hasn't been a single election in all the Castro years. What many Cubans thought would be "paradise" turned out to be something far different.

Castro's proposed gesture to return the prisoners and the ransom money is a beginning, but there are at least six other points which should be candidates for any quid pro quo:

1. Recognition of the property rights in Cuba of Americans whose property was confiscated by the Castro government, as a first step toward full compensation.

2. Free movement of Cubans and U.S. citizens (including former Cubans) between the two countries, especially insuring visits between families now separated.

3. Concrete steps toward a restoration of personal freedoms in Cuba, including the freedom to worship.

4. Denial of Soviet base rights anywhere in Cuba.

5. Written guarantees that Cuba won't intervene in the affairs of other Western Hemisphere nations.

6. Recognition by Cuba of U.S. naval base rights at Guantanamo.

After all these years, we should be in no hurry for a "thaw" in relations with Cuba. We can afford to go slowly and carefully.

Driver training is scheduled

MATTHEWS — Matthews High School will offer a summer driver training program, according to Unit Administrator Billy D. Outland.

The program will begin June 9 and continue for approximately three weeks. The students are required to complete a total of 42 hours of classroom, simulation, observation and driver time. Upon completing this program, students will receive one-fourth credit toward graduation.

Students must be 15½ years old and, if interested, should contact the school by Thursday.

Sikeston's mayor dies

50 years ago
May 27, 1925

Mrs. Ida Malone, who was a resident of Sikeston for 12 years and has many friends here, is one of a large class graduating from the Memphis General Hospital on June 8. Mrs. Malone entered nurse's training three years ago just after leaving Sikeston.

The sale of lots in the new High School addition met with remarkable success and indicated that Sikeston will probably have a number of beautiful homes in that part of town erected in the near future. According to Dan McCoy, sales manager for the new addition, the 80 lots will bring something like $20,000.

Miss Justine Miller will leave Saturday for Memphis, Tenn., where she will enter training for a degree in nursing in the Memphis General Hospital. Miss Miller is the daughter of Mrs. Lillian Miller and has many friends here among the young people.

Morehouse--Twenty graduated from the Morehouse High School Thursday. They were: Henry Hart, Grace Cline, Selma Gruen, Edgar Carrington, Orcille Sanders, Martha Fletcher, Vera Cline, Mae Wilson, Cleo Cain, Helen Murrie, Louis Tickell, Dorothy Priddy, Viola Shelby, Lloyd Nolen, Don Headlee, Thelma Newton, Evelyn Hart, Irene Patterson, Claude Dilday, and Wanda Saville.

James Joyce died Friday at his home in Vanduser of a complication of diseases. He was 78 years old.

Mrs. Sarah L. Taylor, mother of Miss Anne Taylor of Sikeston, died at her home in Morehouse Friday, probably of apoplexy. She had been ill for a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Noonan will move this week to Jefferson City, where Mr. Noonan is now affiliated with the state highway department. They will be joined soon by Miss Louise Davis, who has accepted a position with the government in Jefferson City.

Tomorrow the United States will pay its annual tribute to its World War dead by wearing their flower, the poppy.

Bobby Fikuart, 419 Kathleen street, will graduate with the class of 1955 from the Missouri School for the Deaf in Fulton, Mo., where he has been a student since he was six years old.

Fayette--Miss Marilyn Joyce Eaker is a candidate for a Bachelor of Music Education degree from Central College, and will be among the 81 students at that institution to take part in the baccalaureate and commencement services to be held on the campus on Sunday.

Mrs. Ardie Burch of Matthews left today for Morrilton, Ark., to attend funeral services on Wednesday for her grandfather, I.W. Reedes, who died Monday at his home, following a lengthy illness.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Johns, 223 North Prairie, will move to their newly purchased farm, located northwest of Lutesville, Mo., on Saturday. Their daughter, Miss Marie Johns, who is employed at the Delta Community Hospital, will make her home at the residence of the Rev. and Mrs. E.D. Owens, until September when she will then enter nurses training at the Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis.

Charleston--Melvin Meyer, 58, brother of the late Rev. William Meyer of here, died Monday in a St. Louis hospital after he had been stricken while at Marquand Sunday.

Miss Madeline Bergmann, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bergmann of Cape Girardeau, and niece of Mrs. E.C. Matthews, sr., of Sikeston, died early this morning at the JDeal Nursing Home in Jackson following a year's illness as the result of a stroke.

Charleston--Mrs. Maggie Davis Hust, 63, a resident of Charleston the past seven years, died Tuesday after suffering a heart attack.

New Madrid--Herman Andrew (Andy) Crisler, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H.A. Crisler, was named valedictorian of the 1955 graduating class of New Madrid High School at the commencement exercises last week. Miss Laura Lynnette Jonakin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Jonakin, was named salutatorian.

In commencement exercises Tuesday on the campus of Union University, Jackson, Tenn., Miss Hester McGill received her B. A. degree in business administration.

Case of the itchy date

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Sumptuous Sarah was out to capture the most eligible bachelor in town. And when she finally got him to invite her out, she went shopping for the most captivating dress she could find.

The one she selected, naturally, was more gone than gown. What little there was of it, however, gave poor Sarah a severe rash.

The result? Her long-awaited evening out started out from scratch and she kept itching the rest of the night. The next morning, Sarah sued the owner of the dress shop for her discomfort and embarrassment from the evening before.

"Every time my date put his arm around me," she complained in court, "I had to begin scratching. And if that wasn't unromantic enough, I've been itching and scratching ever since."

It's not my fault the dress caused the wrong reaction," responded the dress shop owner. "The dress was supposed to cause Sarah's date to react and not Sarah."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you make the dress shop owner pay itchy Sarah for her physical and mental discomfort?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when a dress is sold it is impliedly guaranteed to be fit for its intended purpose. A dress that cannot be worn safely, noted the judge, is not fit for its intended purpose.

4-year-olds ready to compete Swimming instructor says

LADUE, Mo. (AP) — The 6-month-old boy suddenly found himself underwater and several onlookers gasped as he sank toward the bottom of the pool. But in the next instant, a pair of strong hands whisked him back to the surface.

"See, he loves it," yelled swimming instructor Steve Nielson to his obviously relieved pupils—a group of 50 parents and their pre-kindergarten children enrolled in a Red Cross water orientation class.

For half a century, the 65-year-old Nielson has shared his love for the water with infants and youngsters and their sometimes edgy parents.

"I'm trying to give the parents something they can do with their youngsters in the summer besides setting them down in the sun," said Nielson, who plans retirement this summer.

Each spring children from 4 months to 4 years invade St. Louis area pools, including one in this affluent suburb, to take part in lessons by Nielson and other Red Cross volunteers. For many toddlers—and a surprising number of parents—it is their first contact with swimming.

More importantly, Nielson contends, the sessions are a way to bring children and their parents closer together.

"You can't buy an exchange of this type," he said. "This sort of experience will give the parent a status of being the source of direction for his youngster during the child's most important growth period."

Because the parent is the center of the child's world, he or she is the best instructor available, Nielson said, even if the parent cannot swim. And the Red Cross estimates that one-third of the parents who take part in the program are not swimmers.

Nielson says parents who are nonswimmers present fewer problems, than those who try to push their children too fast. In one session, he sternly reprimanded a mother who tried to push her daughter's head under water when the girl had hesitated to follow Nielson's instructions to go under.

"I keep telling people, don't look over your shoulder. Let them go at their own pace. The smart parent in orienting their child to anything will try to give him more good experiences than bad ones," he explained.

On the other hand, a doting parent can also block a child's acclimation to the water, Nielson said. "When the child comes up coughing from a big mouthful of water and the parent gets scared and pulls him up and starts cuddling him, they're on their way out."

The popularity of awimming has grown immensely in the past 25 years, says Nielson, who is physical education director for an elementary school.

A growing number of home pools, increasing membership in swim clubs and frequent trips to lakes and oceans—all resulting from Americans' increased leisure time—spell the need for young children to know how to cope in water, Nielson said.

"It was my experience that in 1929 we were teaching 4-year-olds to swim. Now a 4-year-old is almost ready to enter swimming events," he said.

Advance graduate receives scholarships

MURRAY, Ky.--Gary Joe Trout, valedictorian of the graduating class at Advance (Mo.) High School, has been awarded three scholarships to attend Murray State University for the 1975-76 school year.

He was selected to receive a $500 Alumni Association scholarship, a $100 journalism scholarship and a dormitory scholarship, which continues through the 1976-77 school year.

Trout, the son of Mrs. Verda Jenkins Trout, plans to major in journalism at Murray State in preparation for a career in public relations.

Editor of the school newspaper and advertising manager of the yearbook, Trout has served as a member of the student council and is listed in "Who's Who in American High Schools".

He was the recipient of a merit award and a citizenship award in 1974 and was selected as a delegate to Boys State. He served as a co-captain of the basketball team his senior year and also played on the school baseball team.

Trout was among 42 graduating high school seniors selected from about 150 applicants to receive Alumni Association scholarships.

For half a century, the 65-year-old Nielson has shared his love for the water with infants and youngsters and their sometimes edgy parents.

"I'm trying to give the parents something they can do with their youngsters in the summer besides setting them down in the sun," said Nielson, who plans retirement this summer.

Each spring children from 4 months to 4 years invade St. Louis area pools, including one in this affluent suburb, to take part in lessons by Nielson and other Red Cross volunteers. For many toddlers—and a surprising number of parents—it is their first contact with swimming.

"You can't buy an exchange of this type," he said. "This sort of experience will give the parent a status of being the source of direction for his youngster during the child's most important growth period."

Because the parent is the center of the child's world, he or she is the best instructor available, Nielson said, even if the parent cannot swim. And the Red Cross estimates that one-third of the parents who take part in the program are not swimmers.

Nielson says parents who are nonswimmers present fewer problems, than those who try to push their children too fast. In one session, he sternly reprimanded a mother who tried to push her daughter's head under water when the girl had hesitated to follow Nielson's instructions to go under.

"I keep telling people, don't look over your shoulder. Let them go at their own pace. The smart parent in orienting their child to anything will try to give him more good experiences than bad ones," he explained.

On the other hand, a doting parent can also block a child's acclimation to the water, Nielson said. "When the child comes up coughing from a big mouthful of water and the parent gets scared and pulls him up and starts cuddling him, they're on their way out."

The popularity of awimming has grown immensely in the past 25 years, says Nielson, who is physical education director for an elementary school.

A growing number of home pools, increasing membership in swim clubs and frequent trips to lakes and oceans—all resulting from Americans' increased leisure time—spell the need for young children to know how to cope in water, Nielson said.

"It was my experience that in 1929 we were teaching 4-year-olds to swim. Now a 4-year-old is almost ready to enter swimming events," he said.

Advance graduate receives scholarships

MURRAY, Ky.--Gary Joe Trout, valedictorian of the graduating class at Advance (Mo.) High School, has been awarded three scholarships to attend Murray State University for the 1975-76 school year.

He was selected to receive a $500 Alumni Association scholarship, a $100 journalism scholarship and a dormitory scholarship, which continues through the 1976-77 school year.

Trout, the son of Mrs. Verda Jenkins Trout, plans to major in journalism at Murray State in preparation for a career in public relations.

Editor of the school newspaper and advertising manager of the yearbook, Trout has served as a member of the student council and is listed in "Who's Who in American High Schools".

He was the recipient of a merit award and a citizenship award in 1974 and was selected as a delegate to Boys State. He served as a co-captain of the basketball team his senior year and also played on the school baseball team.

Trout was among 42 graduating high school seniors selected from about 150 applicants to receive Alumni Association scholarships.

Delaware, the first colony to ratify the Constitution and thus the first state, claims only one military skirmish during the Revolutionary War, the Battle of Cooch's Bridge, a brief encounter between Gen. Howe's and Gen. Washington's troops during the British advance on Philadelphia. Delaware, The World Almanac notes, made a significant contribution of troops to the war effort: 1,000 militia and 2,386 Continental Army.

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Tuesday, May 27, the 147th day of 1975. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1941, the British Navy sank the German battleship, Bismarck, off France, with a loss of 2,300 lives. The Bismarck had been pursued more than 1,700 miles after sinking the British warship, Hood, three days earlier.

On this date —

In 1860, a force under the Italian patriot, Giuseppe Garibaldi, invaded Sicily and captured the city of Palermo.

In 1905, a Japanese naval force wiped out a Russian fleet of 32 ships.

In 1936, the British luxury liner, Queen Mary, began its maiden transatlantic voyage.

In 1937, the Golden Gate Bridge across San Francisco Bay was opened.

In 1954, more than 100 crewmen were killed in an explosion aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Bennington off Rhode Island.

In 1964, Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru died in New Delhi.

Ten years ago: It was disclosed that U.S. Navy ships had been turning their guns against Vietcong troop concentrations and other coastal targets in South Vietnam.

Five years ago: The New York Stock Market made a record one-day climb after dropping to an eight-year low. The Dow Jones Industrial average jumped more than 32 points.

One year ago: President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France was inaugurated. Jacques Chirac was named Premier.

Today's birthdays: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is 52. Democratic Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota is 64. Golfer Sam Snead is 63.

NEW MADRID--New Madrid County Sheriff's Department has investigated two burglaries reported over the weekend.

Fred Lasters' Service Station in Canalou was burglarized Saturday night and 40 cartons of cigarettes, $40 in change and assorted candy and other food snacks were stolen.

Thieves entered by taking a window out of the front door.

Tools and equipment valued at approximately $2,500 were stolen sometime between Thursday and Monday from the PCA Land Grading Co. shop on Highway 61 at the Matthews Junction.

The building was entered by sawing a hasp off a front door, according to a sheriff's deputy.

Station broken into

MORLEY — The Morley Texaco service station was broken into sometime Friday night and about $14 in cash was taken, according to the Scott County Sheriff's Department.

The station office was entered by breaking a window.

Funnel cloud touched down

MALDEN — A funnel cloud reportedly touched down Monday afternoon near the Glennonville community west of here during a period of severe weather, which passed through a portion of northern Dunklin County.

No damage was reported from the funnel cloud, but wind, hail and heavy rain did minor damage to crops and broke several windows in the Malden area.

Four bicycles reported

DEXTER — City Police are investigating the theft of four 10-speed bicycles which were reported stolen sometime Monday night.

The theft occurred at the home of Joel Pixley, located at 1111 E. Elk St.

NAVY ON THE ROAD

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Navy's 1975 football team will spend much of its playing time on the road. The Midshipmen have only two home games in their Navy-Marine Corps Memorial Stadium — Connecticut on Sept. 20 and Syracuse on Oct. 11.

Crafts on display

This display by the Easter Seal homecraft project, featuring crafts made by the handicapped and aged, was one of many booths and displays set up for the two-day Art in the Park exhibition Saturday and Sunday in West City Park at Dexter.

Family Services employes to picket

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Division of Family Services employes seeking a 22 per cent pay hike and assurances of no staff reductions will man informational picket lines later this week to support their demands, according to a spokesman.

Officials of the Association of Family Services Employes of St. Louis and St. Louis County and family service employes from Boone and Jackson counties revealed the demands at a meeting Monday, along with a request for a "substantial" cost-of-living increase for welfare recipients.

A bill now pending in the Missouri legislature would grant the workers a six per cent pay hike.

Whopper caught

Jeffrey Lee Starr of New Madrid Route One holds a 75-pound loggerhead turtle he captured Thursday four miles east of LaForge near the Swift Ditch bridge. Starr said he pulled the turtle by its tail out of a roadside ditch after he had seen it cross the road and enter the ditch where he was seining crawfish.

Family Services employes to picket

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Missouri Division of Family Services employes seeking a 22 per cent pay hike and assurances of no staff reductions will man informational picket lines later this week to support their demands, according to a spokesman.

Officials of the Association of Family Services Employes of St. Louis and St. Louis County and family service employes from Boone and Jackson counties revealed the demands at a meeting Monday, along with a request for a "substantial" cost-of-living increase for welfare recipients.

A bill now pending in the Missouri legislature would grant the workers a six per cent pay hike.

Whopper caught

Jeffrey Lee Starr of New Madrid Route One holds a 75-pound loggerhead turtle he captured Thursday four miles east of LaForge near the Swift Ditch bridge. Starr said he pulled the turtle by its tail out of a roadside ditch after he had seen it cross the road and enter the ditch where he was seining crawfish.

Two accidents injure 3 people

Two accidents injured three people about 3:30 p.m. Saturday, according to police.

Yvonne Mitckos, 26, of Cape Girardeau, was treated and released at Missouri Delta Community Hospital for multiple bruises she received when the car in which she was riding was struck by another on South Main Street.

Police said she was in a car driven north in the inside lane by Paul R. Dusablon, 59, of 502 Matthews St. The car was struck in the side by an auto driven by Dorothy Clayton, 60, of 713 Allen Blvd.

The Clayton car was northbound in the outside lane when the Clayton woman made a left turn into the side of the Dusablon car, police said.

The accident occurred at the South Main and Helen street intersection. There were no arrests, police said.

About the same time, two people were injured when their cars collided at the intersection of South Main Street and Highway 60.

Police said drivers, Dillion Carl Smith, 45, of Bridgeton, who was southbound on Main Street, and Larry Robert Derzon, 69, of West Allis, Wis., who was westbound on Highway 60, both thought they had the green light and met in the intersection.

The wives of both men were treated and released from the hospital. Helen Derzon, 56, of West Allis, was treated for a bruised foot and Maxine Smith, 43, Bridgeton, was treated for multiple bruises.

There were no arrests, police said.
